Baker Link Used Weight Of LBJ Name

'Johnson' Freely Placed In Letters Without Authority

WASHINGTON (AP)—A cookware manufacturer has told investigating senators he sprinkled President Johnson's name into letters he sent a television station owned by the Johnson family.

But the manufacturer, Albert C. Young, Silver Spring, Md., said he did so without Johnson's authority and, in fact, had never spoken with Johnson, then Democratic leader of the Senate.

The references to Johnson, Young told the Senate Rules Committee in testimony released Saturday, was just "to use the weight of Sen. Johnson's name at the station."

MONEY MANIPULATIONS

The committee is investigating the financial manipulations of Robert G. Baker, a former Johnson protégé who resigned Oct. 7 as secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority. The object of the probe is to determine if Baker's deals posed a conflict of interest.

Young testified Friday he dropped Johnson's name into the correspondence at the urging of Don B. Reynolds, an associate of Baker's who had written $100,000 in insurance policies on Johnson's life.

Reynolds has told the committee that after writing the policies he agreed to buy $1,208 worth of advertising time on the Austin station at the request of Walter Jenkins, a long time aide to Johnson.

Reynolds said he had no use for the time and arranged for Young to use it to advertise the pots and pans made by his Mid-Atlantic Stainless Steel Co.

In a sworn statement to the Rules Committee, Jenkins has denied knowledge of any arrangements by which Reynolds purchased the advertising time.

In his account to the committee, Young said Reynolds "likes to brag a bit" and is inclined, as a salesman, to exaggerate.

The manufacturer described a reference to Johnson in a letter he wrote on June 11, 1957, to the sales manager to KTBC, an Austin, Tex., television station owned by the President's family as "a little bit of background music."

"This had nothing to do personally with Sen. Johnson, who I had never talked to," Young said.

Franklin Parish Sheriff's Race Won By Stevens

WINNSBORO (Special) — Incumbent Franklin Parish Sheriff A. J. Stevens captured the second Democratic primary election Saturday by a majority of 534 votes.

Complete but unofficial totals gave Stevens 3,773 votes, to former deputy Mack D. Rogillio's 3,239.

Saturday's balloting was in the third primary to be held in the unusual Franklin Parish situation.

Results of an original first primary for the sheriff's post were thrown out when one of the leading contenders, former sheriff Hiram B. Waller, died of a heart attack.

Stevens was high man in that voting, held last Dec. 7. He placed second, however, to Rogillio in the second first primary, the two candidates polling 3,547 and 3,438 votes, respectively.

Two other candidates shared a small remaining vote, making Saturday's race necessary.

A total of 7,012 voters turned out Saturday, from a possible total of 8,230.

Stevens defeated Waller four years ago to end Waller's three successive terms in office.

Graham Steps Out Of Draft

HOUSTON (UPI) — Billy Graham, 45-year-old evangelist whose piercing gaze and fiery preaching are known the world over, said Saturday he will neither run nor let himself be drafted for President.

The announcement killed rumors that he might be receptive to a Republican draft for President in 1964, but the way he worded it left the door open for the future.

"I have no intention of entering politics or giving the slightest encouragement to my friends who want me to," Graham told a crowded news conference in the Shamrock Hilton Hotel Saturday morning.

Cyprus Chief Negative About U. S. Peace Plan

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Authoritative sources said Saturday that Cyprus President Arch-bishop Makarios will formally reject a move to station NATO, including American, troops here to keep peace on the embattled Mediterranean island.

He conferred Saturday night with U.S. Ambassador Fraser Wilkins and Cyril Picard, British assistant undersecretary for Commonwealth relations. It is understood he told them the proposal is unacceptable to Cyprus. Nevertheless, the plan in its final form, is expected to be submitted to him officially sometime today.

WANTS U.N.

The bearded prelate, with strong backing from the Greek Cypriot people and its Press, favors United Nations troops instead of those from North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

A proposal to increase the peacekeeping force on the island from five to 10 thousand troops will be submitted by Britain, Turkey and Greece — nations which back Cyprus independence under the treaty of guarantee with the approval of the United States.

Britain now has five thousand troops on the island and the United States has agreed to provide from one to two thousand more.

The balance is to be supplied by other NATO countries, according to the proposal.

Diplomatic pressures built up on President Makarios of Cyprus Saturday night to accept the British-American plan to send a peace force of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to his explosive island nation.

As other nations involved in Cyprus fell into line, Makarios and his Greek Cypriot majority held the key to whether the plan would be accepted.

Britain, the United States, Greece and Turkey were reported working out a four-power presentation of the plan to Makarios in Nicosia, the Cyprus capital.

Badly outnumbered by the bipartisan majority supporting the bill, the Southern opponents apparently decided to forego delaying tactics in hope of winning some Republican support for key amendments next week.

House leaders are aiming for passage by the end of next week.

President Johnson at his news conference Saturday expressed confidence of final passage for the bill without any major concessions to win enactment. But he acknowledged that it will not get through the Senate without a lengthy filibuster by Southern members.

The House is speeding action on the bill to accommodate Republicans who want to take part in Lincoln Day rallies around the country. The Southerners do not want to alienate any potential support by throwing the schedule out of kilter.

As they have since the 10-part bill came out of the House Judiciary Committee last October, the Southerners hammered at their contention that it is an unconstitutional grab for power by the federal government.

Rep. Richard H. Poff, R-Va., said the bill would permit the federal government to set voting qualifications for all elections in direct violation of the constitutional guarantees that such power lies with the states.

The L. B. Faulk American Legion Post No. 13 will meet in regular session Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Home on Forsythe Avenue.

Commander J. B. Bradley said the group will host a special guest speaker from the Philadelphia school of Northeast State College, and a heart attack.

LBJ Directs Verbal Slap At Leader

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson slapped directly at French President de Gaulle Saturday, saying "it would not be in the interest of freedom to share his view" on neutralizing Southeast Asia.

Johnson, at his first announced-in-advance news conference, said that "as I understand it, the neutralization talk has applied only to South Viet Nam and not to the whole of that area."

"If we could have neutralization of both North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam, I am sure that would be considered sympathetically," Johnson said.

PUZZLING WORDS

The President's words left newsmen somewhat puzzled because de Gaulle has called for neutralization of both halves of Viet Nam as well as neighboring Laos and Cambodia.

Thus while Johnson was saying he disagreed with de Gaulle, in essence he seemed to be agreeing—at least in theory—since Laos has been officially neutralized and Cambodia avows a neutral stance.

A White House spokesman saying he wanted to clarify Johnson's statements, said later that the French leader's suggestions had been interpreted in Saigon as envisioning neutralization only of that country. And the spokesman said Johnson was addressing himself to the Saigon interpretation.

Johnson made it clear that his own Viet Nam policy looks

Spacecraft On Way To Moon, Doom

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. spacecraft Ranger 6 streaked toward moon Saturday with a cargo of cameras that could solve ages-old mysteries before they crash on the moon early Sunday.

The spacecraft is so well positioned in space that scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which is controlling Ranger 6 during its 66-hour voyage, decided against a planned last-hour realignment of its six television cameras.

After tracking the vehicle since a complicated midcourse correction Friday, officials said late Saturday it would impact within a 90-mile circle in a desert-like basin called the Sea of Tranquility, which lies some 400 miles to the right of dead center on the moon's visible face.

Dr. William Pickering, laboratory director, said the site is only 15 miles north of the original target, at which the space craft was aimed during the midcourse maneuver.

Impact time is still a few seconds past 4:24 a.m. Eastern Standard Time today.

Pickering placed the target area as 20 to 25 miles south of the Ross Carter, on a line between Ross and the crater Arago.

The position is 21 degrees east longitude and 9 degrees north latitude — only one-half degree off the original aiming point, 21 degrees east, 8 1/2 degrees north.

Pickering gave the spacecraft's last position as 229,283

ANNUAL RITUAL

Groundhogs Under Watch

QUARRYVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Will it be an early spring or six more weeks of winter? That depends, if you believe in legend, on the groundhog.

The groundhog isn't supposed to make his annual much publicized bow until this morning, but his devotees in this stronghold of weather seers have jumped the gun on all other forecasters.

The Slumbering Groundhog Lodge of Quarryville, which unabashedly says it is always first in just about everything, came out with this prophecy Saturday.

"The one and only true groundhog will emerge from his hibernation at 7:23 a.m. today. He will see his shadow, and he will beat it back to where he came from. Everybody knows what that means."

If you go along with popular belief—and with the convictions of the Quarryville lodge—that means six more weeks of winter. If the groundhog doesn't see his shadow on the day named after him that means an early spring.

The Quarryville Lodge, however, has some competition in wathery prophecy from Punxsutawney, Pa. in northwestern Pennsylvania. The Quarryville lodge and the Punxsutawney groundhog club each claims theirs is the true groundhog.

Sam Light, president of the Punxsutawney club, declined to predict whether Phil would see his shadow.

"During the world wars the government asked us not to reveal the forecast because it would help the enemy," said Light.

WOMAN IN CONGO

Missionary Stays With Young Flock

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — A dedicated Pennsylvania woman missionary refused Saturday to leave her Congo orphanage and abandon the children to the mercy of a band of machete-wielding savages dressed in little more than their war paint.

The missionary is Miss Mae Clark, 55, of Myerstown, Pa., who runs an orphanage at Kiangene in terror-ridden Kwilu Province north of the town of Idiofa, itself under siege by the Communist-led marauders. She is the only missionary left in Kwilu.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Miss Clark has twice refused offers by United Nations helicopter crews to fly her to Leopoldville and safety but "we shall make a last attempt to convince her that it is better to leave."

Ninety-six other American and Canadian missionaries have been flown out of Kwilu Province where the terrorists are burning and looting missions and have killed at least four missionaries—an American woman Baptist and three Belgian Roman Catholic priests.

An embassy spokesman said Miss Clark had managed the Kiangene orphanage for years and refused to leave. It is so isolated that it took the helicopter crews several days to find it.

Reliable sources here said the first two platoons of the Congolese 3rd Paracommando battalion had landed at Kikwit, in Kwilu Province, to reinforce the local garrison there.

Only 346 soldiers were stationed at Kikwit. Another 60 were at Idiofa, which is encircled by the terrorists, and 40 at Gungu.

Thousands of terrorists are reported roaming Kwilu in bands of 500 to 700 men each. They are led by Pierre Muelle, a Red Chinese-trained former education minister in the Lumumba Congo government.

Area Man Dies In Car-Truck Crash Saturday

COLUMBIA (Special) — A freight truck driver tried vainly to swerve out of the path of an out-of-control automobile near here early Saturday, and the ensuing collision killed the driver of the auto, Charles R. White, 25, of the Holm Community near Grayson.

State police said the truck driver, Landis R. Cupples, 51, of 305 Oaklawn Dr., Monroe, was uninjured.

Mr. White, who had been working on a barge in the Mississippi River following his release from the armed services in November, apparently went to sleep at the wheel of his 1957 model auto, police said.

The head-on collision demolished the car and heavily damaged the truck.

The fatality, which occurred at 5:45 a. m. 11 miles north of here on U.S. Hwy. 165, was the first traffic death in Caldwell Parish of 1964.

The auto was headed south and the truck was going north. As the auto veered from its lane of traffic and headed at the truck in the other lane, Cupples attempted to avoid collision.

State police said one wheel of the truck was off the pavement when the accident occurred.

There was no evidence of excessive speed in the case, police said. No charges were filed.

Funeral services will be conducted today at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist Church in Columbia with the Revs. Jimmy Bolton and Richard Nugent officiating. Burial will be in Welcome Home Cemetery near Grayson under the direction of Riser and Son Funeral Home of Columbia.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. White, Grayson; one brother, William White, Grayson; two sisters, Mrs. Elton L. Pittman, Grayson, and Mrs. Jerry Gregory, Pasadena, Tex.; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Ratcliff, Olmita; and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Anna White, Grayson.

N.Y. Pupils To Boycott City Schools

NEW YORK (AP) — Integration leaders predicted Saturday that more than half a million pupils will skip classes Monday in a one-day boycott of the nation's largest public school system.

Police authorities said they anticipate no violence, but 8,000 policemen will be ready if needed.

Negro and Puerto Rican groups aimed the protest at the school segregation resulting from neighborhood living patterns. There is no segregation by law.

Boycott spokesmen said the Board of Education plan to initiate an integration by bus program next fall does not go far enough toward eliminating de facto segregation.

Demonstrations were made for appointment of a Negro and a Puerto Rican to the Board of Education. Neither group was represented.

Approximately one million pupils attend the city's K-12 schools. About 165 of the schools have predominantly Negro or Puerto Rican enrollments.

The Rev. Milton A. Galanter, the Brooklyn minister who heads the boycott-sponsoring Citywide Committee for Integrated Schools, said: "We expect that all of the Negro and Puerto Rican students, who comprise almost half of the school system enrollment, will participate in the boycott, plus a substantial number of pupils from the white communities."

Nevertheless, Dr. Bernard E. Donovan, deputy school superintendent, has announced, "The schools of this city will be open and it is expected that every teacher and supervisor will be at his post."

Donovan called upon parents to consider carefully the best interests of their children in deciding whether to participate.

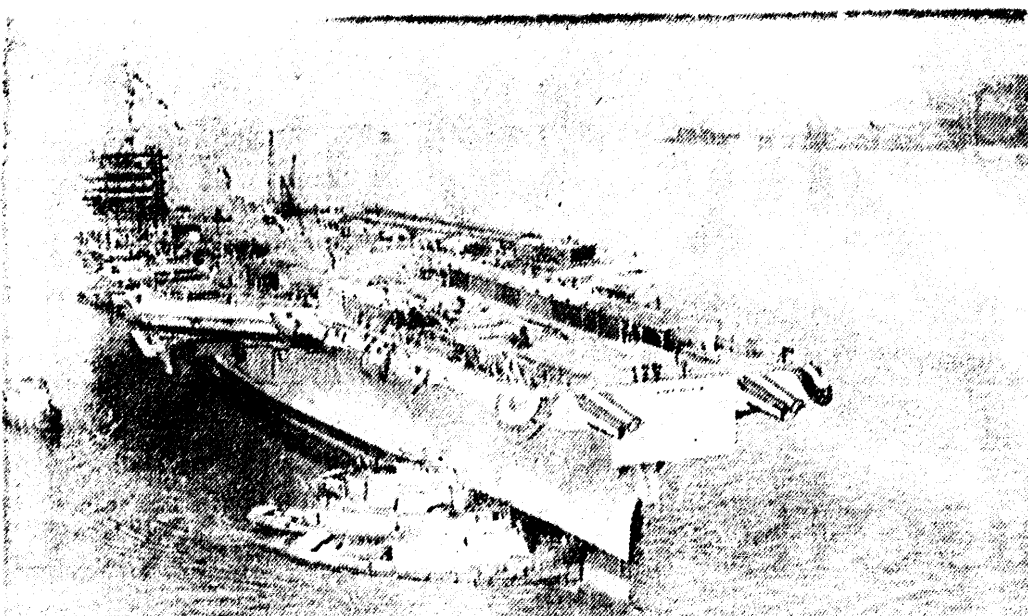

"It would be good for you to explain to your children the seriousness of the problem of integration, the purpose of the demonstration and the great need for understanding on the part of all groups," he said.

Some parent groups in the Bronx and Queens announced opposition to the boycott, and the Citizens Union said, "Solving society's problems is a man's work; children are not tools to use."

The boycott sponsors will conduct a series of "freedom schools" in churches for the pupils who stay away from the public classrooms. The pupils will not be allowed to join the anticipated 8,000 adults on school picket lines unless accompanied by parents.

Civil rights demonstrations also are planned for City Hall, the Board of Education offices in Brooklyn and the Manhattan offices of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"We anticipate no trouble," said Chief Inspector Michael E. J. Ladden after a police conference with boycott leaders.

MENACE TO AVIATION

FAA Slates Meeting For U.S. Secrets, To Study Lightning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA), striving to eliminate the menace of lightning from commercial aviation, is planning a major conference on the problem, it was learned Saturday.

The meeting, to be held later this month at an as yet undetermined date, is aimed at pooling all available knowledge about a subject that was not a safety concern until Dec. 8, 1963. That was the night a Pan American World Airways 707 was struck by lightning near Elton, Md., and crashed, killing all 81 aboard.

The Civil Aeronautics Board

(CAB) after determining that a bolt apparently touched off an explosion in an outer wing tank aboard the Pan American jet, urged FAA to conduct a massive research program into lightning. FAA thus far has:

Set up an inter-agency government committee composed of experts from the Air Force, CAB, Weather Bureau, National Aeronautics and Space Agency, Navy and FAA itself to discuss all aspects of the problem and coordinate efforts to reach a solution.

Let two contracts to firms, the Atlantic Research Corp. of Alexandria, Va., and the Lightning and Transient Research Institute of Miami, Fla., aimed at determining ways to prevent lightning from detonating fuel vapors.

The research largely will be directed toward development of improved flame arresters, a device used to extinguish flames that may result from lightning or static electricity igniting fuel vapors.

Previous research had shown that present arresters on jets may not be adequate under certain rare conditions. Whether such conditions were present in the Elton crash is not known, but FAA officials are convinced that better arresters would be a major step in reducing any lightning menace.

After much consultation with the airlines and petroleum industry, FAA has serious doubts whether jet fuel itself may be the loophole through which death can ride on a lightning bolt.

Following the Pan American accident, there was considerable speculation that a type of jet fuel known as JP-4 was too flammable and was capable of exploding when hit by lightning. The CAB even suggested that FAA consider issuing an order banning the use of JP-4 on all jets operated by U. S. airlines. The Pan American plane carried a fuel load composed of 68 per cent JP-4 and 32 per cent kerosene (JP-1).

FAA's top fuels expert, Robert Auburn, said the domestic airlines already are using JP-1 or kerosene almost exclusively.

Red China Tries For U.S. Secrets, Hoover Warns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover warned Americans Saturday that Communist China, eager to become a nuclear power, is making a bold, new effort to learn U. S. military secrets by infiltrating the Chinese-American community.

Writing in the Harvard Business Review, Hoover said the Peking regime was pushed toward its spying campaign by the Soviet Union's withdrawal of scientific and technical assistance.

"We can expect to face active Chinese intelligence efforts in the United States in many sensitive areas of national defense," he said.

The warning was aimed primarily at industry which was urged to stay on guard.

The Chinese Communists, Hoover said, is develop a nuclear capability and the means to deliver it, either by named bombers or missiles, thus joining the United States and Russia as the world's third major nuclear power.

At the moment Hoover said, Peking does not have a legal base for spying operations in the United States, which has steadfastly refused to grant diplomatic recognition.

Therefore, through propaganda and various ruses, Red China is already trying to infiltrate and influence Chinese Americans in various U. S. cities.

One tactic involves the use of American-educated Chinese scientists living in China. Hoover said these scientists are making contact with scientists in the United States to obtain technological data.

Hoover said Red China can no longer be regarded as an intelligence-contributing member of the Soviet bloc because of its militant opposition to Premier Nikita Khrushchev's philosophy of peaceful co-existence.

Passman Scores Omnibus Action Backed By LBJ

Congressman Otto E. Passman today expressed his opposition to many of the provisions of an omnibus housing bill which is now being pushed by the Johnson Administration. He said that, in his opinion, programs of this type could be carried out better by private enterprise and local communities, rather than by the Federal government at taxpayer cost.

The Louisiana Congressional veteran said that he is "unalterably opposed" to the program for a new Cabinet-level Department of Community Development and Housing, as well as to recommendations raising the authorization limit for public housing, along with a "number of other objectionable features" of the bill.

"And from the standpoint of fiscal prudence, I would be against these proposals regardless of other considerations," he added. "However," he continued, "when it is clear that 'forced racial integration' in the matter of public housing would be a basic part of the program, apart from other Federal controls which would be involved, my opposition to the measure is, of course, intensified even more."

Congressional hearings on the bill are scheduled during February.

Teenage Girl's Mutilated Body Found In Creek

LEWES, Del. (UPI)—The almost nude, badly beaten and knife slashed body of a teenage girl baby sitter was taken from a stream Saturday by state police led to the scene by a Negro trash collector held as a suspect.

The victim was Kathleen Roe Maull, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Maull, white managers of the farm of Mayor Otis Smith of Lewes, members of a family which settled in the area during the 1700s.

Troopers identified the man in custody as Herman Parson, 23, married, a trash collector in Lewes who lives in Jim Town, a Negro community three miles from here.

Parson, under intensive questioning, was held in $80,000 bail for a hearing. Police said a murder warrant had been issued.

The girl had been beaten savagely about the head and face by fists, had two major stab wounds in her stomach, and two in her back.

A preliminary examination did not determine whether she had been raped.

Her body was unclothed except for stockings and a portion of her garter belt when it was taken from the stream.

IN MONROE MONDAY to speak at two special events marking the beginning of Heart Month in Ouachita Parish will be Dr. Alton Ochsner Jr. of New Orleans. He will be the featured speaker at a kickoff breakfast at 8 a. m. and will talk to Heart Sunday volunteers at 10 a. m.

BREAKFAST SET HERE

Heart Fund Drive To Begin Monday

February is Heart Month, McDermott said. "And these diseases are the No. 1 killer in both our state and nation." In Louisiana alone, the death toll from heart diseases was almost 15,000 in 1962.

Medical science is on the verge of great new discoveries, but they can only be realized through an expanded research program," he added. "This is where we can help the most with our contributions."

Dr. Ochsner, who is also editor of the International Surgical Digest, will speak specifically on developments in the field of heart surgery.

Attending the breakfast will be Heart Fund leaders, business campaign volunteers, civic leaders and members of the local Heart Council.

Dr. Ochsner will also be present for a second meeting of the morning at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Oliver Road at 10 a. m. There, Heart Sunday volunteers will gather for a coffee hour to be followed by a short session on Heart Sunday organizational plans. Presiding will be Frank McDermott, general chairman for the month-long fund drive. He will introduce Heart Sunday co-chairmen Mrs. Ike Hamilton of West Monroe and Mrs. Cy E. Epler of Monroe and other committee chairmen present.

More than 100 persons are expected to attend this session, McDermott said.

Other events scheduled during the month will include a bowling tournament during the coming week, Feb. 3-7; balloon sales on the second, third and fourth Saturdays in both Monroe and West Monroe; a Business Days for Heart campaign, Feb. 3-8, and Special Gifts Emphasis throughout the month.

The annual fund-raising campaign reaches a climax on Heart Sunday, which will be Feb. 23 this year. On this day, hundreds of volunteers will conduct a house-to-house canvass for contributions.

The Ouachita Parish Heart Council, local organization of the Louisiana Heart Association, is conducting the campaign to raise funds for heart research and to support professional education and community service programs of the state and national heart associations.

"The American Heart Association, with which the Louisiana Heart Association is affiliated, is the only national voluntary health agency devoted exclusively to combatting the diseases of the heart and blood vessels."

Booster Singing Scheduled Today At Rec Center

Johnson Blunt With De Gaulle About Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has condemned French President Charles de Gaulle's Southeast Asia neutralization proposal, strongly backed the new strong man in Saigon and announced a stepup in the campaign to wipe out Red guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Johnson dealt with De Gaulle and the Viet Nam issue in unusually blunt fashion at a Saturday afternoon press conference held one day after the French leader had proposed the neutralization of the former French possessions on the Indochinese peninsula in cooperation with Red China.

Johnson declared that De Gaulle's neutralization idea interferes with and makes more difficult the U. S. program of helping Southeast Asia's non-Communists against the Reds.

The United States plans to pursue its large-scale aid in the South Vietnamese effort against the Red Viet Cong guerrillas "diligently and, we hope, successfully on a stepped-up basis," the President said.

He did not spell out what form the stepup would take, but other U. S. sources said the United States might enlarge its aid, which now runs about $500 million a year. The United States also has 15,000 servicemen in South Viet Nam to help in the struggle.

Johnson said he had personally replied in longhand to the new South Vietnamese chief, Gen. Nguyen Khanh, in response to a message from the Vietnamese leader accepting Johnson's urging that Saigon step up the pace of military operations.

Johnson wrote Khanh on Saturday: "I am glad to know that we see eye to eye on the necessity of stepping up the pace of military operations against the Viet Cong."

"We shall continue to be available to help you to carry the war to the enemy, and to increase the confidence of the Vietnamese people in their government."

De Gaulle, in outlining his plan at his semi-annual news conference, had spoken of "the state of Southeast Asia." This was interpreted generally as meaning Laos, which has been neutralized, Cambodia, which has assumed an avowedly neutral stance, Communist North Viet Nam and pro-West South

Nam. However, in condemning the proposal, Johnson said, "As I understand it, the neutralization talk has applied only to South Viet Nam and not to the whole of that area of the world."

"I see no sentiment favoring neutralization of South Viet Nam alone, and I think the course we are following is the most advisable one for freedom at this point," Johnson said. At another point, Johnson seemed to speak in favor of a neutralized Southeast Asia, at least in theory. He said: "If we could have neutralization of both North Viet Nam and Viet Nam I am sure that would be considered sympathetically. But I see no indication of that at the moment."

"I think if we could expect the Viet Cong to let their neighbors live in peace, we could take a much different attitude."

Later, a White House spokesman said that Johnson's remark that "as I understand it, the neutralization talk has applied only to South Viet Nam and not to the whole of that area," referred to an interpretation placed on De Gaulle's proposals by officials in South Viet Nam.

Pair Appointed To Olin Cartons Staff Positions

Two appointments on the Olin cartons staff have been announced by I. J. Hurr, administrative manager, cartons, in the Packaging Division of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation. Cartons, including beverage carriers, are made in West Monroe, by the Forest Products Operations of the Packaging Division.

Arthur B. Johnson Jr., has been named project development supervisor. Previously he was assistant purchasing agent for Forest Products.

Johnson joined a predecessor company of Olin in 1950 and was associated with Olin's corrugated container manufacturing operation. He received a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Mississippi.

Alfred E. LeBrun has been appointed sales service supervisor. He formerly held various positions in the carton sales service department. He came with Olin in 1960 after receiving a B. S. degree in mathematics from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

"These two appointments are part of a general expansion and reorganization of our administrative and operation functions necessitated by the steady growth in Olin's folding carton business and by a continuing effort to improve customer service," Hurr said.

In addition to folding cartons, the Packaging Division manufactures a broad range of packaging materials including kraft paper and board, specialty coated and laminated paper and board products, corrugated shipping containers, multiwall sacks, standard and specialty bags and cellophane. It also makes lightweight printing paper, Bible paper, cigarette paper, lumber and lumber products.

FOR TEACHERS, PARENTS

Films On Modern Math Slated Here

Modern mathematics will be the subject of a series of six in-service training films which will be shown to Ouachita Parish school teachers, starting Monday. Parents also are being urged to attend, according to parish Elementary School Supervisor J. M. Waldrop.

The films, provided by Science Research Associates of Chicago, Ill., will be shown during six separate weeks, on four nights each week at various schools.

First of the series, "The Need for Modern Mathematics," is scheduled for showing Monday in the auditorium of West Monroe's Crosley School, for teachers and parents from the following schools and communities: Crosley, Mitchell, West Monroe Junior High School, Ransom, Leavelle, Okaloosa, Woodlawn, Pinecrest and Calhoun.

The same film will appear Tuesday in the Highland School cafeteria, for interested persons from the Highland, Kiroli, Drew, Claiborne and Millsaps Schools.

Ouachita Parish Junior High School in Monroe will be the scene of the showing Thursday night for parents and teachers from that school, Shady Grove and Logtown.

Friday night, it will be shown in the Lakeshore cafeteria for the Swartz and Lakeshore Schools.

Time of the showing will be 7 p.m. in every case.

A similar schedule will be followed in the ensuing five weeks, during which these films will be shown, in order: "Sets, Numbers, Numerals," "Addition," "Subtraction," "Multiplication," and "Division."

The Monroe City School system will receive each film the week following its showing in the parish schools indicated.

The series begins for city parents and teachers the week of Feb. 10-15.

"I cannot stress enough the importance of parents coming out to see these excellent films," said Waldrop. "There has been great interest expressed to our teachers by parents who want to learn just what the new mathematics is all about."

"These films, I think, are ideal, both in describing the systems involved and the methods of instruction, as well."

TITO ENDORSEMENT
 — BELGRADE Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia (AP) has endorsed Soviet Premier Khrushchev's proposal for an agreement to renounce the use of force in settling boundary questions.

Great things happen on Tuesday, at any rate, on Tuesday of this week when the national company of Rodgers and Hart's musical comedy, "The Boys from Syracuse," unpacks its glitter for a performance here.

The occasion marks the second offering of the 1963-64 season for the Northeast State Concerts Association and admission is by membership only. If a member, there are four national and one local attraction remaining on the schedule, and memberships may be purchased through the Division of Fine Arts at North-east, or at Neville auditorium prior to curtain time Tuesday, according to Tom McCann, spokesman for the organization.

Following "The Boys from Syracuse," will be duo pianists Whittemore and Lowe, playing February 11, "The Chicago Opera Ballet," slated for February 27, and the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, coming here in March. There will also be another program by the Twin City Symphony in April.

SHAKESPEARE

We've mentioned before that this Rodgers, Hart and Abbott comedy is a rehash of Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." That's a good source for comedy. With Rodgers and Hart on the music and lyrics, the combination did work and is working again the musical theatre.

Imported reviews from around the South and East give a good account of the traveling company. The critic for the Charlotte, North Carolina, Observer, Dick Banks, pointed out that the troupe put on a "musical—a show full of people who can really sing (and that's a near miracle)." Others mentioned what a "shot in the arm" the performance afforded for those most in need of some sparkling entertainment.

toward an immediate step in military operations against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas. He announced that he had "received assurances from the new and friendly leaders" of the Saigon junta that seized power Wednesday "that they are proceeding immediately" to increase military pressure on the Viet Cong.

Although Johnson said some neutralization plan might receive a sympathetic hearing in Washington, he also said flatly, "I do not agree with General de Gaulle's proposals."

A standing-room-only crowd of reporters jammed into the tiny White House theater for the news conference, at which Johnson also told newsmen:

"Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver will take on additional duties as a special presidential assistant to coordinate Johnson's proposed 'war on poverty.'"

The President had high praise for Shriver, who has been mentioned as his possible choice as the Democratic vice-presidential nominee in November.

—He would not comment on two questions about the Senate investigation of Johnson's erstwhile protégé, Robert G. (Bobby) Baker. The President said he already had spoken "with candor and frankness" on this subject.

VISIBLE ART

If the lyric line has all but disappeared from modern music, there's at least one painter who evidently groves weary of having viewers stare at modern abstracts and inquire: "But what is it?"

We say "at least one" for of the thousands of professionals and amateurs around the country who have cringed over such an insensitive question, one Roy Lichtenstein went so far in the other direction until Life Magazine has come out with some of his "pop art" in full color. His paintings — looking for the world like unskillful clippings from the comic page — leave absolutely no question as to what the subject matter might be.

But now a viewer is inclined to ask, "Where is the art?" Possibly it's right at this point that Lichtenstein and his followers hope to get in a few pointers as to just what art is about. That could be a good way to establish viewer vulnerability although we can't go along with those who say the viewer vulnerability, although we can't go along with those who say the "pop art" paintings themselves are "forceful" or "starkly beautiful."

Anniversary

Today marks the sixth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Roberts of 211 Oregon Trail, Monroe, both members of the Monroe police department.

The couple "jumped the gun" a little in celebrating the occasion by treating themselves to a new house, full of furniture and a Siamese kitten during the past week.

Mrs. Roberts said they will probably have a small party to celebrate the first six years of marriage, adding that she was "looking forward to about sixty more just like them."

miles from earth with 23,774 miles yet to go to the moon. Its speed at the time: 2,306 m.p.h.

If all goes well, first prints of the pictures taken by Ranger 6 may be released at 7 p.m. Sunday, Pickering said.

As the spacecraft streaks nearer the moon, the pull of lunar gravity will increase its speed to almost 6,000 miles an hour at impact.

Ten minutes before the crash, at an altitude of about 900 miles six small television cameras will begin clicking at a rate of 300 shots a minute.

If everything works U.S.

scientists will have the first closeup photographs of the moon. The pictures could disclose whether the surface is rough or smooth, made of lava that could smother a spaceship, or composed of layers of dust that could engulf an entire expedition.

Two earlier vehicles landed on the moon—Russia's Lunik 2 and this country's Ranger 4—graphed the back side of the moon but from altitudes of more than 4,000 miles and the pictures were indistinct. ## Harbuck Named Cancer Crusade Parish Chairman

James Harbuck, zoning administrator for the City of Monroe, has been named chairman of the annual Cancer Crusade in Ouachita Parish for the second consecutive year.

Dr. N. R. Spencer, president of the Ouachita Chapter of the American Cancer Society, made the announcement Saturday.

The Cancer Crusade, conducted annually to raise funds for the fight against cancer, will be conducted in April with personal solicitations made by volunteer workers.

Harbuck announced that the business-to-business drive would be conducted April 6th while the house-to-house campaign will follow April 26th.

Gov. Johnson Tells Of Loan In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Gov. Paul Johnson said Saturday a short-term loan totaling $6 million had been floated to enable the state to pay its January bills on time.

The loan was arranged under a newly-enacted law, sought by Johnson, which was rushed through the legislature earlier this week. The act requires that an operating cash balance of at least $10 million be maintained in the general fund "as of the first day of each calendar month."

Johnson, who signed the bill Thursday, said a report submitted by State Auditor Hamp King late Friday showed the balance on hand was less than the amount required by the new statute.

"Consequently, it was mandatory for the Bond Commission to issue notes in a sufficient amount to provide that the operating balance of the state be maintained at such a level that will insure the prompt payment of all obligations," said Johnson.

He said the Bond Commission, composed of the governor, attorney general and state treasurer, issued short-term notes amounting to $6 million at two per cent interest. The notes were sold to three Jackson banks, the First National Bank, Deposit Guaranty and Trust Co. and Jackson Bank.

U.S. To Allow Wheat Subsidy With Exports

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has agreed to pay export subsidies averaging 78.5 cents per bushel on an additional 7.84 million bushels of durum wheat bound for the Soviet Union, it was learned Saturday night.

Officials declined to name the exporter but trade sources said it was Cargill, Inc., a major Minneapolis grain concern.

In Minneapolis, Cargill appeared to have negotiated the sale of some 26 million bushels of wheat to the Soviet Union. Company spokesmen said they hoped final agreements will be reached Monday or Tuesday.

Cargill on Jan. 10 received an export license from the Commerce Department—a "buying license" authorizing $55.7 million dollars in wheat sales to the Russians if contract terms could be reached. The license covered about 700,000 tons, or approximately 26 million bushels.

The price was posted by the department Friday but only Saturday night was it confirmed that it involves a wheat sale to the Soviet Union.

The department will pay a subsidy of 73 cents per bushel on 3.92 million bushels of durum to be shipped from mid-April through May from Great Lakes ports and 84 cents on an equal amount to be shipped from East Coast ports during the same period.

The price was posted by the department Friday but only Saturday night was it confirmed that it involves a wheat sale to the Soviet Union.

Deadline Nears For Purchasing Louisiana Tags

Local and area residents have four days left to renew passenger car auto licenses for 1964-65 before having to pay a late penalty, Fred Ussery Jr., manager of the local state Department of Revenue office, reminded Saturday.

Ussery pointed out that the deadline falls at 5 p. m. Thursday and that so many persons have put off getting their license tags, the department has been handling long lines for the past week.

However, Ussery said the necessity of having to stand in line at the renewal doors can be eliminated simply by filling out the necessary forms and mailing them in along with a check to cover the costs of the tags and postage. Ussery explained that the forms to be filled out in triplicate, can be obtained at most service stations and must be accompanied by a pink title slip dated 1963 or 1964, plus a check made out to the State Revenue Department in the amount of $6.20. All mail orders postmarked before midnight, Feb. 6, will be acceptable without penalty charges.

The manager also pointed out that licenses can be obtained locally at two substations—one in Shainberg's Department Store located in Eastgate Shopping Center east of Monroe, and the other at the Claiborne Street Fire Station in West Monroe. However, these substations will be closed after Feb. 6 and all licenses must then be obtained from the main office at 611 N. 3rd St., Monroe.

The new licenses cost $6, and are being issued for a two-year period in an initial program for the state. The new tags, deep blue with white lettering, also have an innovation in that they contain an alphabetical letter, representing the number of the Louisiana state police troop covering the area, in place of the traditional pelican.

Ussery said the main office remains open from 8 a. m. through 4:30 p. m. every day this week, while the other offices close after Thursday.

LESLIE R. BOYD, Atlanta, Ga., assistant regional manager of the Southeastern Area American Red Cross, will conduct a Red Cross workshop in Monroe Wednesday from 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. The workshop, for Red Cross Chapter chairman in Ouachita Parish, will be held at the local chapter headquarters and will avail chairmen of an opportunity to discuss individual chapter problems.

The shooting down of an unarmed U. S. Air Force T39 jet trainer by a Soviet jet fighter Tuesday was but the latest in a long series of incidents.

College Graduates Hear Area Judge

Members of the first mid-year graduating class in Northeast Louisiana State College history were told here Saturday by a Shreveport district judge to guard those rights and privileges provided by the Constitution.

"But remember, we will keep our rights only as long as we do our duty," said Judge John A. Dixon Jr. of Division B. First Judicial District.

"We will keep our right to vote only as long as we do our duty and vote, and protect the right of our neighbor to vote."

"We will retain our right to speak only as long as our neighbor has the right to speak freely without fear of unjust punitive measures by those who disagree with him."

"We can worship freely only as long as it is important to us for all men to worship freely. We can be sure of freedom of assembly and fair trials only as long as every man in the country has the same right."

"Every time another man is thwarted in the exercise of his rights, I become less secure in my own," Judge Dixon said.

URGES ACCEPTANCE

Addressing the graduating class of 105 — 96 candidates for bachelor's degrees and nine candidates for master's degrees — Judge Dixon urged the new college graduates to "Accept this world of ours. Improve it, but accept it. Do not reject customs, practices, or institutions merely because their utility is not apparent. Inconvenience, or even some distress may not justify change," he said.

He reminded his audience that even Jesus accepted the world he found, although he did try to change the hearts of men. "He though the most important

On the subject of people, he observed happiness is the result of little, personal things — like a smile, a kind word, or a little praise or sympathy.

McKeithen Starts Stumping

BATON ROUGE (AP) — John J. McKeithen, Democratic nominee for governor, said Saturday since the Republicans insist on a campaign fight he'll start active stumping again next week-end.

The 45-year-old public service commissioner, upset victor in the Jan. 11 Democratic runoff, previously indicated he had no plans for an active campaign for the March 3 general election.

He will meet Republican nominee Charlton H. Lyons Sr., Shreveport oilman, who heads the Goldwater-for-president drive in Louisiana, and states righter Thomas Williams, Ethel.

McKeithen told a news conference here, "we're confident we can overwhelm Mr. Lyons — if we can get the vote out. We're not going to take any chances."

McKeithen said he plans to stump on the weekends, and devote time to television and radio.

McKeithen scoured at any idea Lyons' campaign might help

Arizona Sen. aBry Goldwater's chances to win the GOP presidential nomination.

If Lyons is badly defeated, it might show the nation Goldwater is not so strong in Louisiana, McKeithen said.

"I don't think Goldwater will get the nomination, although I once did," McKeithen added. "It's either Nixon, or most likely, Rockefeller."

On another topic, McKeithen said it might be a good idea now for the legislative budget committee to go ahead with its work.

Information it can develop, working closely with Commissioner of Administration James S. Reilly, the governor's chief fiscal officer, "can be useful for both the incoming governor and incoming legislature," he said.

A top proposal of McKeithen is complete reorganization of the state department of commerce and industry.

"We'll take it out of politics, and school employees."

and it will be staffed by professional men and women," he said. "We don't want to leave undone anything useful in attracting new industry."

McKeithen said he would like to see deLeases Morrison, his defeated Democratic rival, aid in developing the state industrial-

ly. "I haven't proposed that I would bargain with him, but I'd be glad to talk to him," said McKeithen, who will be in New Orleans Sunday night.

"If I should talk to him," McKeithen added, "it would not be on the basis of bargaining. My feeling is that Morrison is a loyal Democrat and in due time he will support the Democratic nominee."

McKeithen was asked his view on a three-bill package pre-filed by Dudley J. LeBlanc of Abbeville, a Democratic nominee for senator, to provide pay raises for teachers, school bus drivers and industry.

McKeithen said he was not sure of the merits of the bills, but he would support them if they passed the legislature.

AT BARKSDALE FIELD

Local Delegation Views SAC Power

Twelve Twin City business and civic leaders were the guests Friday of Lt. Gen. David Wade for an inspection tour of Barksdale Air Force Base in Shreveport.

They were: Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard, Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant, Northeast Louisiana State College President George T. Walker, Dr. V. H. Reitzell, and businessmen Brewer Godfrey, Cecil Hill, Garland Shell, J. H. Scogin, W. P. Heard, Fred Beckett, Fred Cotton and Ray Rhymes.

Gen. Wade, a native of Claiborne Parish and former military classmate of Hill's, is commander of the Second Air Force, headquartered at Barksdale. The force is one of the larger of the Strategic Air Command's four numbered air forces.

The guests received a briefing in the facility's ultra-modern control center and witnessed a mock alert staged for their benefit. A strike force, armed with the deadly "hound dog" missile, was ready for battle in three minutes, 40 seconds, from the time of alarm.

Radio contact was established with an air-borne retaliatory control plane, in flight near Madrid, Spain, and the visitors questioned officials aboard.

They also viewed SAC capabilities in the forms of the B-52 and B-58 "Hustler" bombers, mainstays of the Strategic Air Command.

The Air Force's "Fail-Safe" system for retaliation in event of enemy attack was explained, together with a graphic description of measures to prevent accidental attacks on the part of the United States.

Coordination between several locations is required to initiate a massive offensive undertaking and communication is maintained through virtually un-

Old South Flavor Is Help On Economical 11-2 Design

SOUTHERN CHARM: This 1½-story home has two bedrooms on the main level and expansion room on the second story for two more. Over - all dimensions are a modest 45'6" wide by 25'5" deep. The architect is Rudolph A. Matern.

DRAMATIC FOYER: A two-story ceiling height makes this foyer a gracious reception center. The curved stair-case accents the Old South flavor of the home. The view is from the upstairs balcony.

The economical 1½-story home, long associated with colonial New England architecture, is presented today in a charming Old South facade — complete with soaring balcony over the front foyer.

The ceiling at the main entrance is a full two-story height, with a dramatic chandelier suspended over the curved staircase and flagstone foyer.

Actually the half-story above the main level doesn't have to be completed when the house is built. When it finally is finished,

A fully study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c/o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-13.

It will provide 544 square feet of built-in expansion room — enough for two huge bedrooms, a full bath, and an enormous amount of closet space.

The completed house then will become a four-bedroom home with both sleeping and daily living area sufficient for a large family. Meanwhile, the newlywed couple will have a two-bedroom home with growing room to spare. In short, it's a house that will expand right along with the family.

The main level contains 1,157 square feet and includes a spacious living room with a fireplace, a 10' by 11' dining room which opens onto a dining porch, a combination family room - kitchen for family gatherings, two well sized bedrooms and a full bath.

A key feature of the house is nicely integrated outdoor living area, surely to be appreciated when warm weather comes. The connected porches adjoining both the family room and the dining room are covered, and could easily be screened for all-weather enjoyment.

There is a full basement, with a steel exterior entrance in the rear to help control traffic.

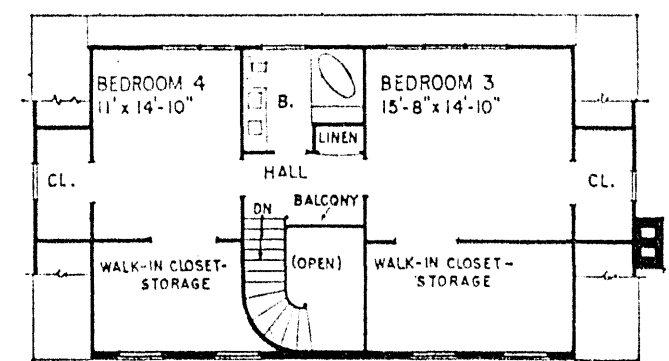

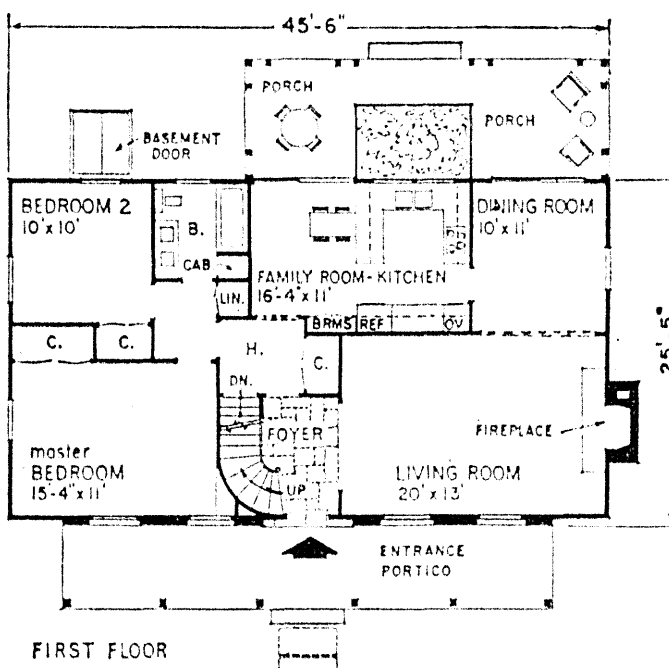

Traffic circulation, in fact, was a major consideration of architect Rudolph A. Matern, who designed the home for the House of the Week series. He managed to assure unobstructive traffic flow throughout the house with a minimum of space devoted to hallways.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS
The covered portico in front is one of the charming exterior features of this home. It's a pleasant place for old-fashioned porch-sitting, a delightful pastime which somehow seems to have gotten lost in today's rush and bustle.

The charm of the portico carries throughout the home. The elegant foyer with its dramatic high ceilings is the first example; the living room with its large windows and handsome fireplace is another.

But the house doesn't overlook the conveniences of modern living. The kitchen, for instance, is efficiently designed to save steps and even has an oversized broom closet handy for canned goods, ironing board, vacuum cleaner and other items needed for unexpected emergencies.

The main bathroom downstairs is equipped with a double lavatory and a medicine cabinet large enough for today's phethora of bottles and tubes every family accumulates. The cabinet, of course, is in addition to the linen closet just outside the bathroom door and convenient as well to both downstairs bedrooms.

FLOOR PLANS: The second story of this home doesn't need to be completed when the house is built, but when finished will add 544 square feet of built-in living area. Over - all dimensions are only 45'6" wide by 25'5" deep.

Upstairs, both bedrooms are large enough for twin beds, at least, and are equipped with an abundance of walk-in closet and storage space. The upstairs bathroom also has a double vanity, and there is a huge linen closet in the hall.

The exterior of the house features white brick veneer in the front and wide wood siding on the other three sides. Six stately columns grace the front portico and handsome treatment of the windows and front door give the home the appearance of an elegant Southern mansion.

Traffic Deaths Reach Record Of 110 Daily

CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic accidents killed 43,400 Americans last year—a record toll.

They hit an unprecedented death rate of 110 a day.

They injured an estimated 1.6 million persons badly enough so they were disabled at least beyond the day of the accident.

They cost about $7.7 billion in wage losses, medical expenses, insurance and property damage.

The National Safety Council, in reporting the figures Saturday night, said the 1963 total exceeded the previous record of 40,804 set in 1962 by 6 per cent. With every month of 1963 except January recording a higher toll than the corresponding month of 1962 the record went far beyond the old one.

Travel, the volume of traffic and the number of drivers also zoomed to record levels.

CONCERT

A provocative record merchandising proposition is that the conductor in a Verdi aria is as important as the prima donna singing it. The record is called "A Verdi Collaboration." The collaborator of the celebrated and pretty Anna Moffo is Franco Ferrara, a conductor or almost totally unknown to the public (RCA Victor-2685.)

Ferrara pushes the Verdi orchestra persistently but with a sensitive ear to its proper part of the whole fabric through eight Verdi arias which Miss Moffo sings with her usual tonal beauty and sense of character and drama. Ferrara doesn't try to run from him. To that extent, it is a collaboration.

Naturally the gala the Metropolitan Opera recently gave to honor the 50th anniversary of Giovanni Martinelli's debut on its stage was commemorated with a recording. It contains nine arias from the Italian repertoire which Martinelli recorded between 1915 and 1939 (RCA Victor-2710.)

That Martinelli could really make the Met's rafters (or any operatic rafters) ring! It's exciting to hear a voice of such power, accuracy and warmth. Martinelli has been a most fortunate human being, as you appreciate when you see him now in his old age beaming happily at every Met opening. His one misfortune was to come so soon after Caruso. His gifts never quite received all the appreciation they deserved.

Among currently practicing opera singers few create quite as much emotional and musical excitement on a record as Regine Crespin does. It's a special quality of womanliness she gets into her voice. Her new recital record is made up of arias from Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," Rossini's "William Tell," Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and "Otello," and Wagner's "Tannhauser." There's a wide-ranging repertoire for you, and she is equally at home in all parts of it (Angel-36144.)

There have been many collections of arias sung by Richard Tauber, one of this century's most compelling singers who died in 1948, but yet another one is most attractive. Issued under the obscure label "Washington," it takes him through the magnificent tenor arias of Mozart operas into those of Bizet, Verdi and Puccini and finally into the prologue of Pagliacci which was intended for baritone! (Washington-468.)

POPULAR

Vaughn Meader's remarkable talent seems to be wasted on his newest comedy album, "Have Some Nuts!!!" (Verve V-15042.) It's not Meader's fault because his timing is excellent in each of the episodes that make up this satire on events and institutions.

And Meader is supported by an excellent cast which includes Joe Silver, Bob McFadden, Phil Leeds, Norma Macmillan, Roy Stewart, Fay DeWitt and Jim Connell.

The fault lies in the script, which lacks imagination and originality. Most of the punch lines are telegraphed and some of the sketches are downright banal. If not dog-eared.

It's quite possible that this album will appeal to many persons, and become a best-seller because Meader does make the best of his material.

But it is hoped that Meader, in the future, will demand better scripts.

Originality is not necessary in projection of humor but imagination is. Two good LP's, "Fast, Fast, Fast Relief from TV Commercials" (Audio Fidelity AFSD 6112) and "Commercials to Cringe By" (MGM E-SE-4174), are based on an old and familiar theme. But on each of these LP's imagination is used to give a funny twist to something ordinary. John Farris did the script for the Audio Fidelity album and Jack Fox for the MGM LP.

Goldwater, Rockefeller Make 2 Bids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller are going to test their popularity in two primaries May 12—but not against each other.

Rockefeller's entry in the West Virginia presidential primary on that day will share the New York governor to enshrine headlines with Goldwater's run in Nebraska.

The number of convention delegate votes involved is small—Nebraska has 16 and West Virginia 14. But both candidates for the GOP presidential nomination believe they can demonstrate strength in these presumably unopposed workouts.

West Virginia got a lot of attention in 1960 when the late John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, tested the reaction of a largely Protestant state. He made a breakthrough toward the Democratic nomination by handily beating Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

While Rockefeller can expect no such clearcut result as this, he will have an opportunity to test in economically distressed West Virginia the popularity of the social welfare proposals he has been plugging. Rockefeller has tried to draw a sharp line between his and Goldwater's views in this field.

West Virginia hasn't had a Republican primary since 1952, when the late Sen. Robert A. Taft swamped Harold E. Stassen by 139,812 to 38,251. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who wasn't running there, got the presidential nomination.

Goldwater expects to demonstrate in Nebraska that he is popular in the agricultural Midwest.

A strong showing in Nebraska, if it followed a similar display of strength in the April 14 Illinois primary, would bolster the argument of Goldwater supporters that he is the choice of the area some Republicans like to call their party's heartland.

Unlike West Virginia, however, Nebraska law permits voters to write in their preference for the presidential nomination. In 1960 74,356 Republicans wrote in the name of then Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who later won the nomination.

Rockefeller got 2,028 votes by the same method and Goldwater, who wasn't considered a contender then, collected 1,068.

Goldwater has called Nixon his strongest opponent for this year's nomination. He has said that Nixon write-ins in the March 10 New Hampshire primary will give some indication of Nixon's political future.

Gremillion Urges Riddance Of 'Deadhead Attorneys' From Payroll

By JAMES MCLEAN
Associated Press Writer
BATON ROUGE (AP)—Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said Saturday the next state administration can save $1 million a year by getting rid of what he termed deadhead attorneys on state payroll.
He suggested "cutting out these unnecessary and unwanted legal expenses, because the authority and prestige of the attorney general's office depends on the quality of the attorneys who are on the payroll."
"I want to mention two exceptions," the stocky, volatile Gremillion said. "The Department of Highways and the Department of Revenue should have their own legal sections. Other than that, I think the legal affairs of this state belong in the attorney general's office."
Through the years, more and more state agencies are being authorized to hire their own attorneys, Gremillion said. "This of course detracts from the authority and prestige of the attorney general's office," he said. "And under the state Constitution to the legislature, the 49-year-old attorney general was ousted last year by the 1962 session as a tide-die Jr. last December. # High Altitude Sportsman

An ex-paratrooper, now a pre-law student at Northeast State College, is a veteran of more than 200 high altitude parachute jumps aimed at small target areas. In this account he recalls some of his experiences in the fast paced art of sky diving.

By PIC FIRMIN

Jerry Kirby is a sky diver. But he doesn't look like one, or so I thought when I first saw him. He had just swung from the door of a big yellow school bus after parking it for the night at the Ouachita Parish High School's motor pool near Selman Field.

He drives the bus from 7:05 a.m. until 8:05 a.m. and from 3 p.m. until 4 p.m. In between, Jerry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kirby of 1604 S. 1st St., Monroe, attends classes at Northeast Louisiana State College where he is majoring in pre-law. His father is chief criminal deputy in the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department.

As he walked toward me he flashed a quick grin and extended his right hand — rigid and white with plaster of paris. No, I thought, this guy can't be a sky diver — he doesn't look like he could jump from a chair without breaking his neck. I was later to learn that this slightly-built, crew-cut blond was an ex-paratrooper and guerrilla warfare trainee, veteran of over 200 jumps and holder of five trophies for sky diving competition in the United States and the Far East.

WORLD OF RIPCORD

After exchanging brief introductions we headed for town and a table where my enlightenment of the world of the ripcord was to take place.

In the one-sided interview that followed, the modest Neville High School graduate (1959) did most of the talking, and with a positiveness and sincerity that immediately labeled him as authority on the sport. The paramount factor of concern to anyone who even as much thinks of sky diving is that of safety. So quite naturally the first question involved the dangers of stepping out of an airplane two miles up. I admitted to Jerry that I knew very little about sky diving and had apprehensions.

"It's human nature to fear something you don't understand," Jerry explained. Most folks don't understand the art of sky diving. They read statistics on the safety of jumping and ignore them, just as they scan statistics telling of the dangers of speeding on the highways, and ignore them also. It's funny how people

Monroe Morning World SUNDAY FEATURES

Monroe, La., February 2, 1964 1-B
Editorials, Spotlight, Sports

will make themselves comfortable in a bucket seat, take 300 horses by the reins and accelerate down the highway at 120 miles per hour — never believing for a moment that their life is endangered. But if they see a fellow dive from an aircraft they shake their heads in awe and whisper ignorantly, "That guy either has guts or he's cracked. I'd never tempt fate like that."

"Sure, there are dangers in sky diving, and the top one is carelessness. That's why I'm sporting this cast — a few bones in my hand were cracked when I got careless and made a bad landing. Sky diving is like most sports, if you observe good safety precautions you minimize the chances of a mishap."

FUNDAMENTALS

And like most sports, a knowledge of the fundamentals is necessary for correct and safe participation. Hours of "basic training" and practice are spent even before the first jump. The novice must be mentally familiar with the proper method of exiting from the aircraft, positioning the falling body, pulling the ripcord, grasping the lines, guiding the parachute, hitting the ground and shucking the 'chute, to mention a few.

From the moment a jumper leaves the plane, time becomes a paramount factor. "Assume that you jump from 13,000 feet," said Jerry, "and you pull the cord at 2,500 feet. Approximately 60 seconds will have elapsed during the mile and three quarters plunge and you can't afford to fall much farther before opening the 'chute. At 175 feet per second the ground will meet you in less than 15 more seconds."

"Enthusiasts jumping under Parachute Club of America supervision are required to have their 'chute opened upon reaching the 2,500 mark. (An altimeter mounted on the reserve 'chute eliminates the worry of counting off the seconds.) After opening the chute at 2,500 feet you can relax and enjoy the two minute drift earthward."

One hardly thinks of stepping out of an airplane and falling for a mile and a half as relaxing, but according to Jerry it's an ideal way to "get away from it all and really be alone for a few moments."

"It's difficult to explain the feeling of free fall (the art of positioning the body in a manner that actually allows you to 'fly' or control your direction and rate of descent). It's similar to standing in the middle of a typhoon or hurricane with the winds ripping past at 150 miles per hour — you wonder if you aren't standing still and it's the air that's moving. Seconds after you tumble out of the plane and reach 'terminal velocity' the winds start to screaming like a banshee. The noise gets louder and louder and finally you pull the ripcord to escape the eerie sound."

MAXIMUM SPEED

"Terminal velocity is the maximum speed a diver reaches before opening his 'chute. In jump circles the 'mark of a man' is for the beginner to hold at terminal velocity as long as possible and 'hear the banshee'."

Other thrilling variations include passing a baton between two divers while free falling, gliding, somersaulting and even snapping photographs while plummeting earthward. Jerry says that a diver has a great amount of control and is not nearly as helpless as ground observers might think.

"While a sky diver is free falling he can control his horizontal movement and regulate his rate of descent by positioning his body and limbs," Jerry noted. "Directional control is accomplished much the same way as with a glider, using the arms and legs for ailerons and rudders. By using this maneuver, known as 'tracking,' a diver can travel horizontally one foot for every five to seven feet he falls. To slow the rate of descent a diver spreads his body horizontally with the ground, affording a greater resistance against the air and to speed descent he dives vertically with his limbs close to the body, streamlining himself and reducing air resistance."

Once the parachute is open, the diver's control is limited to guidance or direction only, emphasized the sky diver. Examination of one of Jerry's five main 'chutes (he also has several emergency ones) revealed a 25-pound piece of geometry and nylon that looked almost too delicate to support a teddy bear. The canopy of the chute is 28 feet in diameter with a small hole at the apex and is divided into 28 pie-shaped sections called gores. Suspending from the rim of the canopy are 28 nylon lines that meet at a point on the diver's harness.

Military 'chutes are a bit heavier, with 35 gores and a deeper pocket while the emergency ones are lighter and smaller. Emergency 'chutes weigh only half as much as the regulars and are worn on the front of the body.

TWO 'CHUTES

"You never jump without two 'chutes," advised Jerry. "I usually pack the mains myself, but according to PCA regulations the emergency 'chute must be assembled by a licensed rigger. There's no danger if the main fails, but if the emergency quits on you, well . . ."

Two of the gores on Jerry's mains were missing and one even had three sections removed. "This is a popular practice with sky divers as it aids in maneuverability of the 'chute," he stated. "The gores are removed from the aft portion, causing the diver to drift at a forward angle while descending. A special line attached to the trim of the canopy will cause it to rotate up to 360 degrees when pulled and by knowing the wind velocity and direction and continuous altitude a diver can guide himself in any direction."

Directional control is an important factor in target work — one of the favorite competitive aspects of sky diving in which the diver bails out at about 5,000 feet and aims himself at a cross-shaped target on terra firma known as "the X." The two crossed lines, painted in a brilliant color on the ground, measure about 25 feet in length and are approximately two feet wide. Some targets, however, are circular, noted Jerry.

In the center of the target sometimes rests an egg and according to Jerry, breaking the egg is to skydivers what a hole-in-one is to golfers.

Has Jerry ever cracked the egg? "Sure," he laughs, "but every time was during non-competitive jumps. Of course there is some luck involved in hitting the center, but most divers consistently land within a six-yard radius of the egg. Competition really gets intense at a meet with about 80 per cent of the contestants hitting within the bounds of the X. For example, at a meet in San Joaquin Valley, Calif., I missed out on first place by only two and one half inches."

POINTS BASIS

Jerry explained that his score in that meet, like most, was based on aggregated points covering at least three phases of competition: target work, aerial work, and a combination of both.

Aerial work is the performance of various acrobatic stunts and calculated maneuvers while executing the free fall. Included are sure feats as two divers exchanging a baton several times during the minute-plus time lapse before 'chutes open, somersaults and gliding.

In competition, ground observers with binoculars award points for pose, number of baton exchanges and several other finer aspects seemingly unimportant to the layman.

Considered the domain of only experienced sky divers because of the skill required, aerial work is not advised for beginners.

'REAL TEST'

"But," says Jerry, "the real test of an accomplished diver lies in combination jumping where the diver executes the required maneuvers and also attempts to hit the target. A diver is usually far off course when he pulls the cord."

The aging (23) Jerry says that his days of competition jumping are just about over, mainly because of studies and work. "Nowadays I just jump for the sheer pleasure of it."

But Jerry still recalls with fondness the days when he "went trophy hunting" on both sides of the globe, netting one first place and four minor trophies. His only first place honors were won four years ago in Japan at a U. S. Army sanctioned club meet at Tachikawa Air Force Base, near Tokyo.

Second place trophies were taken three times at Yamatan, Okinawa during arm approved and sponsored meets in 1959-60.

The real heart breaker came at the PCA-sponsored meet at San Joaquin, Calif., in 1961 where Jerry lost by only two and one half inches.

In the Marshall, Tex., meet Jerry led all contestants during the first day and a half of a two-day meet, but had to settle for fourth place and no trophy when the final scores were tallied.

Belittling Parents

Destroying every phase of loyalty, responsibility and honor except that which adheres to the government and looks to it only for sustenance, glory and adoration is the real objective of socialistic and totalitarian states. Because loyalty, responsibility, honor and integrity have their roots in the home and must be conceived and nurtured there, if they are ever to develop, one of the first major objectives of a totalitarian state is to disrupt and destroy the home, to wipe out the faith of the children in that institution.

Churches of the United States and throughout the world, particularly the Christian churches, all down through history, have worked to maintain the sanctity of the home, to encourage all members of the family to have respect for each other and to teach the children to honor and obey their parents until they, themselves, have become adults and have developed the wisdom that goes with maturity. Yet, we find some pseudo-churches, or organizations traveling under religious or church names, that deliberately try to tear down the sanctity and faith of the home so that all children will become slaves or puppets or robots of the state.

In the fight to preserve constitutional government and the free enterprise system, nothing is more important than guarding the institution of the family.

In American life, the family is the basic unit in which a child learns the religious, national and personal values by which a person ought to live. Moreover, as a family is a collection of individuals, cooperating freely and relying on traditional truths, it is a teaching experience that prepares youths for an ethical existence and for a useful place in our capitalist society.

This is worth mentioning because totalitarians always seek to undermine the family and subject children to outside disciplines and to the thought reform and control that is called "brainwashing." Indeed, it is lamentably true that even in the free United States there are attempts being made to damage parental authority.

One such effort was made public in mid-January when the Youth Ministry Consultation on Race, sponsored by the Emergency Commission on Religion and Race of the National Council of Churches, was held at the Methodist General Board of Education building in Nashville, Tenn.

In a shocking display of contempt for law and order and for the right of parents to educate their children in their own values, the meeting openly proclaimed ways and means by which parental authority could be subverted. One adult editor of a "youth" magazine said that youths should be "blooded" in demonstrations, that "the kids owe it to the church to march, to picket, . . ." She pointed out that "all over the nation parents have restrictive influences. Summer camp (church) is the first time for the youth to get away, free to do as they like." Another speaker said: "Parents in the North would get as mad at seeing their kids in a labor picket line as in a civil rights line . . . We need to get the kids politically involved." Indeed speaker after speaker urged that youths be encouraged to get into conflict with the law.

The Nashville Banner, in a strong comment on this National Council of Churches-sponsored conference, said:

"These are, Mr. and Mrs. America, YOUR children this 'Emergency Commission' panel is talking about—and the parental authority it proposes to subvert is yours. The teenager it seeks to attract for its own scowling use is right out of your home, school and church. The ideological manipulators are now picking them young."

Good churchmen undoubtedly are shocked to find that an organization that describes itself as religious in character should be urging youngsters to get out from under parental influence and to join street demonstrators in violation of the law of the communities in which they live.

There are many things that are outrageous about such efforts. But the worst of all is how it violates the precepts of the Christian religion. "Honor thy father and mother," says the commandment. But the NCC's commission would have the youngsters honor a commitment to civil disobedience rather than parental injunctions to be law-abiding members of their communities.

Thus the damage done by such adult advice is not simply to the communities that might be plunged into strife but to the children themselves. To urge children to break the law and to engage in what amounts to social revolutionary activity is to damage a child's development. For Christians, this is shocking beyond words, for Jesus Christ specifically condemned anyone who would harm a child in any way. He said it were better that they have a millstone tied around their necks and to be cast into the sea than to harm a little one.

And what kind of citizens would these children be who accepted indoctrination by the NCC Commission instead of heeding the lawful authority of parents and community? Would they be law-abiding adults after having been law-breakers in their youth? What the NCC Commission suggested is that one can choose the laws one wishes to obey. Such a suggestion is unworthy of belief.

In learning of the conference's efforts to get students to join civil disobedience campaigns, one's thoughts go back to the terrible Nazi era and the rise of the Hitler youth movements in which youngsters were encouraged to become militant demonstrators and pay no heed to their parents' counsel. Such attacks on parental authority have no place in the United States of America.

Margaret Chase Smith

The announcement of Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Republican senator from Maine, that she is a candidate for the Republican nomination for president caused a mild ripple of interest. It did not disturb anyone, not even the others who have cast their hats into the ring or would like to.

In part, the Memphis Commercial Appeal commented thus:

"It is a delightful change in this time of so much attention for minorities to have a candidate seeking the votes of the majority—the women.

"There is little reason, of course, to suppose that women will stick together in the cause of electing a chief executive, or that convention delegates will nominate her. . . . She is a happy change in the political images of the year."

Mrs. Smith's husband, Clyde, was in the house only three years. His widow has been winning elections to congress 24 years and is the first woman to serve in both houses.

The woman senator must have some qualifications other than being the widow of a congressman. It is not uncommon for a congressman's widow to be elected immediately after his death, as a mean of showing respect and out of sympathy, but not many of them continue to be re-elected in their own right and to advance to the upper house.

The idea of Mrs. Smith's seeking the presidency is not bad. It will tend to get the people used to the idea of seeing a woman aspire to the highest executive office in the land.

CHARLES O. GRIDLEY

Cigarettes Are Now Under Three U.S. Jurisdictions

ALL CIGARETTES, like all Gaul, are now divided into three parts, with each part under a separate federal jurisdiction. That starts as a jest, but its significance registers with three agencies of government—the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Communications Commission and the Public Health Service.

Six weeks from now, when public hearings begin on proposed rules governing cigarette advertising before the FTC, the division between the three is expected to be more apparent. The Federal Trade Commission will be considering rules governing advertising. But the bulk of cigarette advertising in recent years has swung to TV and radio, over which the Federal Communications Commission has jurisdiction. The Public Health Service may be said to have a residual interest, because the report of the Advisory Committee on Smoking and Health bears the imprimatur of Dr. Luther Terry, Surgeon General of the U. S., and head of the Public Health Service.

Dr. Terry has said that he anticipated "foot dragging" by the Federal government in taking "remedial action" called for by the report. But inquiry at the three agencies named indicates vagueness as to how far the remedial action should reach, and just what it should be.

The Federal Trade Commission will have before it two forms of a warning against cigarettes as a health hazard, to be placed on package and container labels. Its authority to require such labeling has not yet been challenged, but the tobacco industry will be represented at the hearing by counsel to present the views of cigarette manufacturers.

Whatever the Commissioners agree upon will probably be backed by Congress. But a supplemental proposal before FTC covers television announcement and those come under the Federal Communications Commission, which in the past has exercised regulatory jurisdiction over TV commercials.

Thus far, FCC members have been loathe to discuss the probable conflict of jurisdiction between the agencies. The National Association of Broadcasters will hold its annual meeting soon in Miami, and its recommendations will carry weight with the Commission as in previous instances.

The FTC has already issued a proposed set of rules covering cigarette advertising, including a prohibition (1) of any statement that cigarette smoking is beneficial to health and (2) of any assertion that one brand of cigarette is less harmful than another, unless the advertiser has substantiated that claim in advance.

But the Public Health Service through Dr. Terry, has not yet submitted the second phase of the advisory committee's report, which will include recommendations from a set of advisors different from the first since "different competencies" will be needed for the recommendations to be made. A campaign of "education" against smoking will be one of its recommendations.

A fourth federal agency would be brought into the picture if Congress passes legislation placing branding and misbranding of smoking products under the food, drug and cosmetics act, which is administered by the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Agriculture.

Whether Congress, with a busy session ahead, will be disposed to take time to consider remedial action in line with the report on smoking and health is doubted in some quarters. The FTC is believed to have ample authority to prescribe label warnings on cigarette packs and cartons. But the question being asked here is what the advertising agencies handling the major tobacco accounts will agree to, without legal compulsion, in overlaying their colorful and persuasive cigarette advertising with grim health warnings.

The present situation brings to mind that since the repeal of prohibition, liquor advertising, sensibly handled by the beverage trade, has drawn criticism mainly from the dry organizations. Regulations on liquor advertising, mostly local and state require no health warnings though the same physicians who drafted the smoking and health report would probably concede that alcoholic beverages can be more harmful than cigarettes.

A few members of Congress will keep alive the fight for severe restrictions on cigarette smoking. The agencies having jurisdiction may require six months to reach a general agreement on such restrictions.

RALPH DE TOLEDANO

Rockefeller And Votes Of Women

IN ALL THE jockeying for position that has occurred since President Kennedy was assassinated, one fact has remained constant: Governor Nelson Rockefeller has not profited. The pundits and the analysts may insist that Governor Rockefeller has clumped. The Wall Street kingmakers may argue that new circumstances have made Richard Nixon or Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania the only tailor-made candidate.

No one says that Mr. Rockefeller's political star has soared. He remains an almost-ran. The why is interesting, and those of us who write for the public prints have touched on it from time to time. But we have been perhaps a little less than all-out in discussing it. An outspoken reader, Mrs. Evelyn Reel of Oak Ridge, Tenn., comes to grips with it in a no-holds-barred manner. She realizes that in a situation like this, the male animal tends to be timid.

LET ME QUOTE extensively from Mrs. Reel's letter:

"Perhaps you can't say it for a few dozen reasons besides the ones I can think of, but perhaps you can quote a reader. 'Americans aren't against divorce, heavens to betsy, look how many of us there are. Near as I can understand Him, Jesus wasn't against divorce, within specified limits. So Mr. Rockefeller's divorce, and even his remarriage, didn't disqualify him in the eyes of the voters.'"

What then is responsible for his inability to make a comeback?

Mrs. Reel says bluntly: "At our dumbest time of life, when we were most selfish, completely immature, mighty few of us would have traipsed off in pursuit of happiness if it meant leaving our children. And although the factors which molded Mrs. Rockefeller may explain her . . . still, when a girl becomes a woman she is responsible for the kind of person she is."

"If I think a thought, have a feeling, then I figure there are a few million more thinking the same thoughts, having the same feelings. . . . If I felt that Mr. Rockefeller is the only one who could divert us from becoming

The Complete Welfare State, I would grit my teeth and tolerate for the first Lady a woman who would desert her children. But that ain't the way it is. If my vote will keep her out of the White House, she'll never make it."

"And there must be a heap of women (and a few men) in this country who feel the same."

THIS IS A BLUNT and tough assessment. I would never write it that way, perhaps because a man sounds cruel when he expresses himself in that fashion. But I can say, in all honesty, that Mrs. Reel expresses the thoughts and the feelings of many women with whom I have discussed the Rockefeller remarriage.

They do not really blame him. Women believe that all men are but little boys being led by the hand, that they are the eternal victims of their unscrupulous sisters. (Nothing like a woman to be anti-woman.) Where children are involved, the female species becomes a tiger—and with justice. Divorce and remarriage, particularly in a country with a rate as high as ours, can be forgotten. Divorce did not hurt Adlai Stevenson despite efforts to make it an issue. No one paid any attention to gossip about an alleged earlier Kennedy marriage because it was held to be a private matter, whether true or false.

BUT ABOUT CHILDREN, Americans are sentimental to the hilt. Only the Russian people can challenge us in this department. Had the present Mrs. Rockefeller been childless, there would have been no flap at all over the remarriage.

And that's where it sits. The woman voter is a powerful force in these United States. And Mrs. Reel is correct when she implies that the woman voter doesn't intend to forget.

If I were a bookmaker, I might take or give odds on this or that Republican candidate. This is a matter of handicapping. But I would stay away from any bets on Governor Rockefeller's chances. The best reasoning and analyzing is often faulty—as most of us learn with each new election. But when the men put their feet down, it's best not to be under that spike heel.

Common Market To Shun Pitfalls

THE EUROPEAN Common Market, already hailed in some quarters as the greatest economic venture in history, is determined to avoid some of the pitfalls which have plagued American agriculture.

And it is doing so with full awareness that the makeup of the farming community in the six member nations is not nearly as self-sufficient as that of the United States.

The basic thrust of agricultural reform in the Common Market is to achieve greater productivity per acre of available farm land as compared with United States concentration on productivity per man.

In a recent review of its aims and accomplishments, the Common Market noted:

"The European Economic Community policies are aimed at developing a cautious market and price policy for agriculture which enables well-run farms to make a reasonable per capita income but which seeks to avoid structural surpluses such as those which often have been troublesome to the American government."

"THE COMMON Agricultural Policy partially responds out of necessity, to some of the pressures caused by U. S. price support and export subsidy policies that have been built up to cope with the pressure of U. S. overproduction of some farm commodities."

Europe has been able to appreciate America's farm problem not only by observation but through its own experience immediately following World War II when it was not only faced with a general shortage of food but a shortage of foreign exchange with which to buy food elsewhere.

In virtually no time these European countries, helped along by technological improvements in farm production, moved from food scarcity to food surplus. Many of them soon resorted to a patchwork of protective devices affecting imports and exports between those countries with farm surpluses and those without.

BECAUSE FARM incomes remained lower than incomes in other sectors of the European economy, government farm price support and adjustment programs were instituted. These often led to inefficient and uneconomic farm production.

Wide variations in the productivity and efficiency of farmers from country to country, and even from region to region within the Community, tend to aggravate the situation. While farm income generally improved through the 1950's, the gap between agriculture and the rest of the economy grew steadily wider.

The similarity between American and European agriculture doesn't end there. Consider these problems which persist on both sides of the Atlantic. U. S. farmers, like their European counterparts, have not enjoyed the same relative prosperity since the end of World War II as have non-farm segments of the economy.

WHILE FARM efficiency and productivity have risen rapidly in both the United States and the EEC, so have the costs of things farmers must buy in order to operate. As a result, net income has remained virtually constant over recent years despite remarkable per capita consumption increases of many farm products.

Both in the Common Market and in the United States there are migrations of farm workers from rural to urban and industrial areas where job retraining is often needed.

Common Market countries are determined to avoid the price-depressing farm surpluses of certain basic commodities which have been a major headache in this country since 1950.

THE EEC IS QUICK to point out that unlike the objectives of the Common Agricultural Policy, many of the U. S. programs have not sought to encourage efficient, quality production by benefiting efficient producers, by seeking stabilized domestic consumer prices, or by avoiding the buildup of excessive production for which markets are limited.

The United States will be watching EEC closely to see if there is indeed some way out of its own farm dilemma.

The Week In Focus

by Jack Gates

There Is No Peace

A few years before the outbreak of World War II, a noted foreign correspondent wrote a book "I Found No Peace." It was based on his experiences and coverage of brush wars and violence. Everywhere he went, he wrote, he found nothing but unrest, revolutions and small wars.

That was literally true of the world the past week — from Japan to the darkest nation in Africa there was no peace—only trouble and the United States was either directly or indirectly involved in just about every one of them.

In South Viet Nam

In South Viet Nam, there was another revolution. Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, described as a tough, o-American, overthrew the ruling military junta in a bloodless coup which he said was necessary to "sweep away the Communist and traitors who are in favor of neutralism."

The 36-year-old Khanh, commander of the key First Army Corps, presumably had the backing of most combat commanders in toppling the three-month-old junta, which had risen to power by destroying the Diem brothers. Khanh said that he acted to prevent a French-inspired neutralization of Viet Nam. He claimed the ousted junta members had been plotting with French agents to this end.

The uprising threw out Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, provisional chief of State and chairman of the junta who had sparked the previous revolt.

Meanwhile, U. S. military authorities appeared deeply concerned about the revolt, saying that "this development can only hurt the war effort."

At weekend, the situation was still fluid, but Khanh seemed to be in complete control and a virtual dictator. Some of the troops and tanks used in the uprising were diverted from a planned offensive against a Communist guerrilla stronghold.

As usual, official Washington was taken by surprise by the coup.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and President Lyndon Johnson conferred repeatedly on the situation as they attempted to learn how much damage the latest upheaval had done to the war effort. Nevertheless, some officials said the greatest harm from the coup comes from the atmosphere of political instability it created. At weekend, most officials admitted they knew little or nothing about the new government where $1.5 million in U. S. aid is spent daily and where 15,500 American troops are deployed.

At any rate, the Communists were expected to take advantage of the situation and launch a major attack at some point in the far-flung battlefield.

Red China And France

President Charles de Gaulle of France let the United States know again the past week that he thinks for himself and does what he believes is the best — regardless of what we think about it.

His most recent emphasis on this point came when France recognized Red China, the first West National to do so since the Communists took over shortly after the end of World War II.

Ironically, no sooner had France extended recognition than de Gaulle became involved in an argument with the Chinese. Red China fired up when France proclaimed its intention to maintain relations with the regime of President Chiang Kai shek. In effect, this created a two-Chinas policy for France.

Red China demanded France break relations with Formosa, adding that its understanding with France was that this would occur. A French spokesman said it was not France's understanding.

The move was a slap at the U. S. because we had sought to keep France from extending diplomatic recognition to Red China. The French move was also expected to improve the chances of Communist China's admission to the United Nations — a move this nation has blocked in the past.

Meanwhile, in a major policy address, Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Tokyo emphasized the U. S. "will never abandon the 12 million people on Formosa to Communist tyranny." Rusk spelled out U. S. attitude toward Peking's Red rulers at a dinner winding up a U. S.-Japan Cabinet conference on trade and economic problems. In a detailed indictment of the Communist regime, Rusk declared: "Peking has violated the Geneva agreements of 1954 on Indochina and the Geneva agreements of 1962 on Laos. It incites and actively supports aggression on Southeast Asia."

Anyway it is viewed, France's action, however, made it harder for the U. S. to hold the line against trade and diplomatic gains with other Communist countries. But as a French spokesman said: "You (the U. S.) trade with Russia — a Communist nation — why can't we do the same thing?"

More Communist Victims

The Soviet Union continues to shoot down our planes and kill our airmen seemingly at every chance they get—and so far all we've done is protest.

The latest in a long series of attacks came over East Germany — another trouble spot on the earth's surface. The Soviets finally admitted their fighters shot down a U.S. Air Force trainer, which was unarmed, in East Germany on Tuesday, killing all three officers aboard.

The U.S. protested "most strongly," a protest which the Russians ignored. They, in turn, sent a strongly-worded protest accusing the U.S. of gross provocation "aimed at aggravating the situation in Central Europe." The Soviets charged the flight was "a clear intrusion of Soviet air space; that the plane was intercepted and when it did not obey two orders it was shot down."

The bodies of the three U.S. pilots and the wreckage of the plane were returned from East Germany by a U.S. military convoy Friday.

Meanwhile, Soviet planes continue to violate U.S. controlled areas frequently and do it safely and the U.S. continues also to sell them wheat and other grains to keep the Communist in power.

Many Other Trouble Spots

There were many other trouble spots also. There was trouble on the so-called cease-fire lines in Borneo which jeopardized agreements supposedly reached on Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's peace efforts in Malaysia. Both Indonesia and Malaysia had complaints the past week.

President Sukarno of Indonesia, whose idea is that opposing forces should stand pat, objected in Jakarta to Malaysian calls by radio and air-dropped messages for Indonesian-backed guerrillas to surrender. Said Sukarno: "We will not accept this kind of a cease-fire."

Meanwhile, Malaysia announced two violations in Sabah-North Borneo — of the order for a halt in the shooting a week ago. It said guerrilla guards opened fire on British and government troops, killing 5. Kennedy, who returned to Washington earlier in the week, received plaudits from President Johnson "on the good job" he did in obtaining a cease-fire, which isn't expected to last very long.

Down Latin America way, the Panama sore was still painful and embarrassing. Negotiations aimed at a peaceful solution of the dispute collapsed. Panama charged aggression and called for an emergency meeting of hemisphere foreign ministers.

Johnson, in turn, charged that U.S. troops, faced by sniper fire and mob action, repelled aggression rather than committed it. Riots in the Canal Zone led to a rupture in U.S.-Panama relations. The Inter-American Peace Committee, an arm of the OAS, has been trying to mediate the dispute. The effort ended in failure on Wednesday.

Panama has remained firm on its demand that the U.S. pledge it will sign a new treaty to replace the 1903 agreement which gave its rights to the canal in perpetuity. At first the U.S. refused to mention the canal in any agreement talk. Later it agreed to seek with Panama "concrete solutions of all problems dividing both countries."

Then, there was trouble in the Congo again. Rebel guerrillas, operating in the Southwest Congo, killed at least four missionaries, including an American woman. Meanwhile, UN helicopters and missionary planes were attempting desperately to rescue other missionaries threatened by the guerrillas, using poison arrows, spears, homemade bombs and primitive guns. About 150 Americans and Canadians, including several children, have been stationed at Protestant missions in the threatened areas.

The Congo government claims that Red China is supporting the revolt which is being waged by about 600 rebels and led by the former education minister, Pierre Mulele, 34, who spent several months last year in Peking.

In another area of Africa, the Communist bloc was making a determined drive to win friends and influence people. At the same time, the governments of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika, all new nations, were playing down a threat of Communist subversion, partly for fear of frightening away foreign investors.

Kenya's leftist information minister, Achieng Omondi issued a statement on Wednesday claiming there was no evidence uncovered to connect foreign interference with recent army mutinies in the three newly independent countries.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that about 500 students from Kenya are attending schools in Communist countries. When they return, they could play a major role in Communist plans for the area. Communist countries are constantly rolling out the red carpet for politicians and union leaders from East Africa and large sums of money also are known to have been paid by the Communists to certain prominent individuals.

Another trouble spot was in Cyprus. Britain and the U.S. want to send troops from NATO to that eastern Mediterranean island to halt the wave of killings between Greek and Turkish Cypriots. However, Greek Cypriots have indicated that they want a United Nations force to keep the peace, rather than one from NATO.

A meeting between the Cyprus government, Britain and the U.S. started during the weekend over the issue. Meanwhile, Russia charged that Britain and the U.S. plan "aggression" against Cyprus and warned them not to endanger peace by landing troops on the island.

Week In Washington

REPUBLICAN congressmen have accused President Johnson of using "smart remarks" to dodge questions about his past friendship with Robert G. Baker, Rep. H. R. Gross of Iowa led a four-way exchange on the House floor about Johnson and the former Senate Democratic secretary whose business activities now are under investigation by the Senate Rules Committee. Gross said Johnson's "conduct and statements . . . raise more questions than they answer." Johnson told reporters a week ago that a 1959 gift to him of a stereo record player was nothing unusual; that he and Baker had exchanged gifts before, and that Baker was "asking for nothing, and so far as I know expected nothing in return." Later Johnson said he was a little amused by Republican criticism, but would have nothing further to say about the Baker case.

ONE OF THE MOST DANGEROUS proposals as far as business is concerned has been made to Congress by President Johnson. The president is seeking permission for the government to require double pay for overtime in selected industries as a weapon to combat unemployment. His idea is that the higher overtime pay might encourage employers to hire more workers rather than assign their present force to overtime work. This, in effect, if approved, would allow the government to step further into business operations and would actually, for the first time, give federal officials a direct right to participate in certain policy decisions.

A MISSISSIPPI senator, John Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee, has proposed a naval patrol between Cuba and the Panama Canal if favorable results aren't forthcoming from talks proposed by President Johnson. Stennis said such a patrol would let the world know we are not intimidated.

SENATOR Margaret Chase Smith, 66, redoubtable campaigner from Maine, recited all the reasons she should not run for the Republican presidential nomination, and then said: "So, because of these very compelling reasons against my running, I have decided that I shall." As a "moderate Republican" the slim, silvery-haired senator will enter the first primary in New Hampshire March 10.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, the U.S. felt the past week it could claim the lead over Russia in booster power. It came when the U.S. used its awesome Saturn 1 rocket to orbit the world's heaviest satellite, The Saturn, generating 1.5 million pounds of thrust, carried aloft a satellite weighing 37,700 pounds and placed it in an orbit range from 162 to 467 miles above earth. It is circling the globe once every 95 minutes. Later in the week, we fired the Ranger 6 and aimed it at the moon to make photographs. At weekend, the Ranger, with a little correcting, was on target.

An Up-To-Date Look At Castro, Cuba

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fidel Castro, after five years as dictator in little Cuba, still thumbs his nose at big Uncle Sam.

Internal economic troubles he may have. His patron, Soviet Premier Khrushchev, may be weary of his expensive protégé. But Castro remains a strong fact of life despite all U.S. efforts to cut him down.

Washington's government now rates Castro right along with Viet Nam, Berlin and divided Germany as big trouble in a world full of problems.

As if Castro's activities in this hemisphere were not enough of a headache for Uncle Sam, there are reports of a link between the recent revolution in Zanzibar, on the other side of the world, and Communist Cuba.

Training

Zanzibar was one of the African nations sending so-called students to Cuba, where special training centers in Communist subversion, propaganda and guerrilla tactics have been in operation several years.

Washington may be in for still more trouble from Havana-Moscow plotters.

A new deal between Havana and the Soviet Union, announced at the end of Castro's midwinter visit to Moscow, makes it clear Khrushchev plans to provide Castro with additional dollars to tempt Uncle Sam's allies to do more business with Cuba.

The angle is that the Soviet Union will demand less sugar from Castro and allow him to sell it on the world market, where prices have gone from an average of 2.8 cents a pound in 1962 to the recent range of well above 10.5 cents. Oddly, the price rise is due largely to sugar crop failures in Cuba and the Soviet bloc countries.

In Latin America, the bearded, talkative Castro is still the biggest headache for Washington. The trouble with Panama, over the Canal Zone, serious as it is, comes second in this hemisphere.

Castro came into power Jan. 1, 1959, when Fulgencio Batista, his predecessor as dictator, took flight before the sweep of the popular revolution Castro led.

Washington hastened to recognize the disorganized revolutionary regime, even before Castro reached Havana on his triumphal march from the mountains.

It was not long, however, before Washington became wary of him. U.S. officials began to wonder whether he was a Communist, since some of his activities had a decidedly pro-Communist slant.

Now there is no doubt. Now there is total disenchantment with his promises that Cuba's revolution would see to it that there was respect for human life and liberty, that Cubans would enjoy more freedom than they had ever known in their lives, plus genuinely free elections, and social and economic reforms to make times better for everybody.

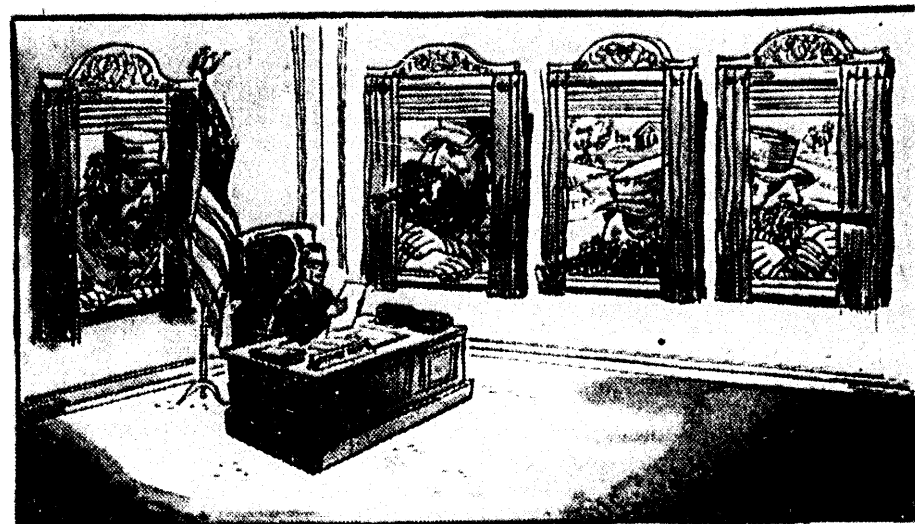

But also now, despite years of U.S. efforts aimed frankly at toppling Castro from power and entreaties to other nations to help that program, Castro is boss.

U.S. officials, however, believe that internal troubles of every description are piling up for Castro, that the Cuban economy particularly is in chaos and that sooner or later something will happen to bring collapse of Castro and his regime.

Official Washington insists that its policy of economic and diplomatic isolation of Cuba is getting results.

That is why, officials here explain, that Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in a major policy speech recently in New York, emphasized anew that this country's allies are damaging the Western Hemisphere's defenses against communism by trading with Castro.

Such trading by nations like

FIVE YEARS after he took over in Cuba, Fidel Castro haunts the State Department, as depicted in this AP Newsfeatures cartoon. The little communist island is a big headache to State Department planners, in many and varied fields, Cuba's friendship with the Soviet Union is only one of the issues which divide her and her big neighbor. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

England could provoke strong reaction in the U.S. Congress, many of whose representatives are from traditionally isolationist areas.

Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, called Britain's sale of buses to Cuba a "despicable" way to treat a nation which gave England, a "supposed friend," colossal support on numerous occasions. There are some signs that Washington is still pressing London not to go through with the bus deal.

Cuba's industries minister, Ernesto Guevara, says the U.S. economic blockade is the main reason Cuba's industrialization program failed.

Realized

Cuba, a land where even fence posts take root and two or three crops a year are not unusual, now is unable to produce enough of the once-abundant vegetables, fruits, poultry, beef and pork to go around.

It has strict rationing of all key foods, including the favorite black beans and rice, coffee, as well as of drugs, milk, oranges, shoes and all other items of clothing.

U.S. officials say the United States has had much more cooperation than is generally realized from non-hemisphere nations in carrying out the isolation program against Castro, and that Latin-American republics have cut their trade with Cuba to a mere trickle and generally regard him as a nuisance where they once applauded him as a hero of reform and liberty.

Cuban exiles, some of them recently arrived from Cuba, describe internal conditions as appalling. They say Castro Cuba has the most oppressive system of internal espionage of Cuban against Cuban the little nation ever knew under its worst earlier dictators.

Cuban children are taught to spy on their parents, relatives and friends, to single out anyone not in sympathy with the revolution.

There are some who speculate that Moscow may be wearying of the outlays required to keep Cuba going.

The Soviets are reported to be putting a million dollars a day into Cuba's economy alone, aside from fantastic military outlays which have made the island the best-armed nation in all Latin America.

There are an estimated 7,500 Soviet military men in the island; some exiles say they are there to keep Castro under control.

If Castro is now beset by troubles, and he is, there have been moments of glory for him, bulwarks for his ego.

In April 1959, only a few months after he had been in power, but long enough to raise doubts about him in the United States, he came to the United States as an invited guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, although the U.S. State Department was obviously displeased at the idea of such a visit.

Then in September 1960, he went to New York City to speak to the United Nations. There he got a public bear hug and assurances of help from Khrushchev.

But a speech of nearly five hours to the United Nations by Castro which became an angry tirade against the United States seemed to have done him harm, as did a noisy incident in which Castro charged he and members of his official party were not being treated hospitably.

Newspaper stories and gossip about the Cubans' conduct in New York held Castro up to ridicule and wounded his feelings.

The United States confined Castro to the 22 square miles of Manhattan, said it did so for security reasons, since thousands of Cubans had already fled from Castro's dictatorship in Cuba. Even so, there were incidents between pro-Castro and anti-Castro groups during Castro's stay in New York.

From Castro's viewpoint, one of his greatest successes since his own victory over Batista was the crushing of an attempted invasion of Cuba by Cuban exiles, with some backing but a lack of military support, from the United States.

Bay Of Pigs

He turned the Bay of Pigs invasion of April 1961 into the worst international defeat of the then-new government of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Only a few days before Kennedy had said that no U.S. armed forces would be sent into Cuba merely to oust the Castro regime. That has been U.S. policy since, but the Kennedy pronouncement did not preclude U.S. action if events in Cuba should, in the opinion of the Washington government, threaten the security of the United States or of its neighbors in Latin America.

In October 1962 the United States decided that such a situation had developed after the Soviet Union quipped bases in Cuba with missiles capable of reaching most of the United States mainland area and any point in the Caribbean from Mexico to Peru.

Kennedy imposed a military blockade of Cuba, demanded that the Soviet Union withdraw the missiles and destroy the launching installations. The Soviet Union backed down, apparently without so much as consulting Castro who later refused to allow the on-site inspection Moscow had promised to prove that the missiles and the bases had been removed. U.S. officials say aerial inspection convinced them this had been done.

Officials Feel

Officials here feel there has been a steady decline in Latin America's estimate of Castro as evidenced by the 1962 declaration of the American republics that Castro's regime is incompatible to inter-American ideals of freedom and democracy.

Widespread reports that the Cuban revolutionary regime was deeply involved in the Panama disturbances came at an awkward time for the Havana government, experts say.

Many Daily Changes For UN Secretary

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Two years as U.N. secretary-general have brought many changes in the daily life of U Thant. He himself has changed little.

When the Burmese teacher-journalist-diplomat succeeded the late Dag Hammarskjöld on Nov. 3, 1961, he was lauded by friends for his gentleness, serenity and calm. He is still being praised for the same qualities—and for the quiet firmness he quickly displayed.

He seems to thrive on the pressures of the job which former Secretary-General Trygve Lie called "impossible."

His work day cannot be cut to a fixed pattern.

Sometimes

Sometimes, when the General Assembly or the Security Council are meeting, he spends hours listening to the debates. At other times, he gets a chance to catch up on reports, administrative work and on his contacts with U.N. delegates.

Of one thing he can be sure: his days are always long and crowded.

At 55 Thant is trim and fit-looking, although he devotes little time to exercise. In the summer he swims in the pool at his rented home—the villa Bella Vista—in the swank Riverdale section of the Bronx, overlooking the Hudson River. His only other exercise is an occasional hike about the neighborhood on Sunday.

The secretary-general rises at 6:30 a.m.

In accordance with his Buddhist training, he begins the day with 15 to 20 minutes of meditation and prayer.

"In the East," he says, "we put more emphasis on the mind than the body, and the spirit still more than the mind."

It was a little after 8 a.m. when this correspondent drove up the private driveway to the two-story red brick house. The house has 14 spacious rooms and six acres of ground, which include a tennis court, an outdoor pool, a well-kept garden and a servant's house.

The secretary-general was at breakfast in his dining room with its magnificent view of the Hudson. He already had spent an hour reading the morning newspaper and was in the midst of his bacon and fried eggs—his favorite breakfast.

Thant wore a dark blue suit, a white shirt and a dark blue tie with small white dots. He sticks to conservative suits and dark ties. He does switch to tweeds on Sundays, and his wardrobe includes a few sports jackets.

Very Fond

Thant is very fond of his big German shepherd dog, Bala, which in Burmese means "strong man."

The secretary-general's breakfast was served by a young Burmese maid who, along with the housekeeper, was with the family in Rangoon. They are practically members of the family.

When Thant is at home, he spends much of his time in his study. Across the hall from the dining room is a reception room with a small bar, and this leads into a large drawing room. What little entertaining he does at home is done in these two rooms. The drawing room has a fireplace at one end and is dominated by a huge green rug which is a gift from King Hassan of Morocco.

The study opens on a glass-enclosed solarium, originally a greenhouse, but now used by Thant in summer as a place to work. The study walls are lined with book shelves and framed photographs.

These include an autographed color photograph presented to him by Pope Paul VI and pictures of former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Eleanor Roosevelt, Thant and Hammarskjöld together in profile, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and one of Thant with the late President John F. Kennedy and U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

Thant works at a large desk, facing the fireplace.

On this day, he spent almost an hour in the study working on a report to the Security Council on the Cyprus situation.

It was 9:25 when Thant stepped into his official car to be driven to U.N. headquarters by George Pogue, a U.N. security man assigned to special duty as deputy personal aide to the secretary-general.

Fast Ride

After a fast ride down the Henry Hudson Parkway, the Harlem River Drive and the Franklin D. Roosevelt drive, Thant arrived at the United Nations at 9:45. He was whisked to the 38th floor of the secretariat building by non-stop elevator and went immediately to his private office. Here he conferred briefly with his secretary, Lucien Lemieux, a youth-looking French Canadian.

Thant's work started in earnest at 10 o'clock when he met with the undersecretaries and other key advisers in one of the periodic sessions he calls to keep everybody abreast of developments.

The hour-long session was devoted mostly to a review of political problems being dealt with by the United Nations or apparently headed for it. He gave the group a detailed report on the Cyprus situation and his own actions in sending an observer to Cyprus and a representative to London.

He reported on the latest developments in Yemen, the Congo, the Malaysian controversy, the Jordan River dispute and the differences between Thailand and Cambodia. Finally, he filled the group in on plans for his scheduled trip to Africa beginning Jan. 28.

Thant had kept the rest of the morning free to work at his desk. His first job was to finish drafting his report on the Cyprus situation. He then went over a report from his special representative in the Congo, Max Dorsinville of Haiti.

At 1 p.m. the secretary-general took the elevator down to the main lobby to greet President Antonio Segni of Italy, who was to be his guest at a luncheon in the South Lounge. He escorted Segni back to the 38th floor, where they talked privately for 20 minutes.

The luncheon—attended by 34 delegates and top-level U.N. officials—began at 1:30. The luncheon was purely social except for an exchange of toasts.

Peace Corps, Observing Third Birthday, Doing Good Work

EDITOR'S NOTE — When the Peace Corps was born, few gave it much chance for survival. When the Peace Corps is 3 next month almost everyone will be singing it a lusty and unanimous happy birthday.

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — During a recent crisis, the ambassador from a Latin-American nation told a U.S. official:

"Withdraw your ambassador, cut off foreign aid—these things will impress the government. But if you withdraw the Peace Corps, this will disturb the people. You may start a revolution."

Approaching its third birthday on March 1, the Peace Corps has been described as "the one New Frontier program that soared."

Its Success

If its success endures, it may be a more fitting memorial to the late President John F. Kennedy than all the stadiums, streets, buildings and other structures named after him.

One volunteer recently wrote: "I feel that the Peace Corps is a living and breathing answer to Kennedy's famous 'Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country.' One source of consolation for me over his loss is that I was in the chorus that answered him."

Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver says college students now accept the Peace Corps as a sort of post-graduate program.

In recent months, the Peace Corps has set stiffer standards for volunteers and lowered its sights as to numbers. Instead of trying to reach a level of 13,000 by next August, the goal is now 11,300.

This means that many foreign nations clamoring for volunteers will have to be turned down. The cutback is not due to any lack of volunteers, or even difficulties in getting money from Congress.

Peace Corps officials feel that the quality of the individual volunteer is the key factor in Peace Corps success. They are trying to recruit the best players to keep their winning streak intact.

Applicants

The number of applicants has climbed each year. Shriver expects it to reach 55,000 this year, compared to 40,000 in 1963.

In the quality of applications is better," he says. "More of the applicants are in our most productive age bracket—22 to 27. They have higher academic qualifications, and we know this means better volunteers."

Last fall, when Communists in Peru called for immediate expulsion of the Peace Corps as spies for the United States, an organization representing 50,000 persons dwelling in big city

BREAKING new paths which in turn may break old patterns of poverty is one of the jobs the Peace Corps is doing. Don Close, 35, of Allentown, Pa. slums came to the defense of "the noble and humane mission of the members of the Peace Corps who are working in Peru."

"We have 400 teachers in Ethiopia," says Shriver. "They want 400 more. If we could maintain 700 volunteers there it would mean you couldn't go to high school in Ethiopia without being taught by a Peace Corps volunteer."

Shriver points to new projects involving highly skilled manpower, such as an educational television project in Colombia in cooperation with the Agency for International Development. The network will reach 94 per cent of the schools in Colombia.

"We have lawyers in Africa, helping to codify the laws for new nations," Shriver says, "also geologists, social workers and teachers of business administration."

"There are six men teaching the operation of Linotype machines in Afghanistan."

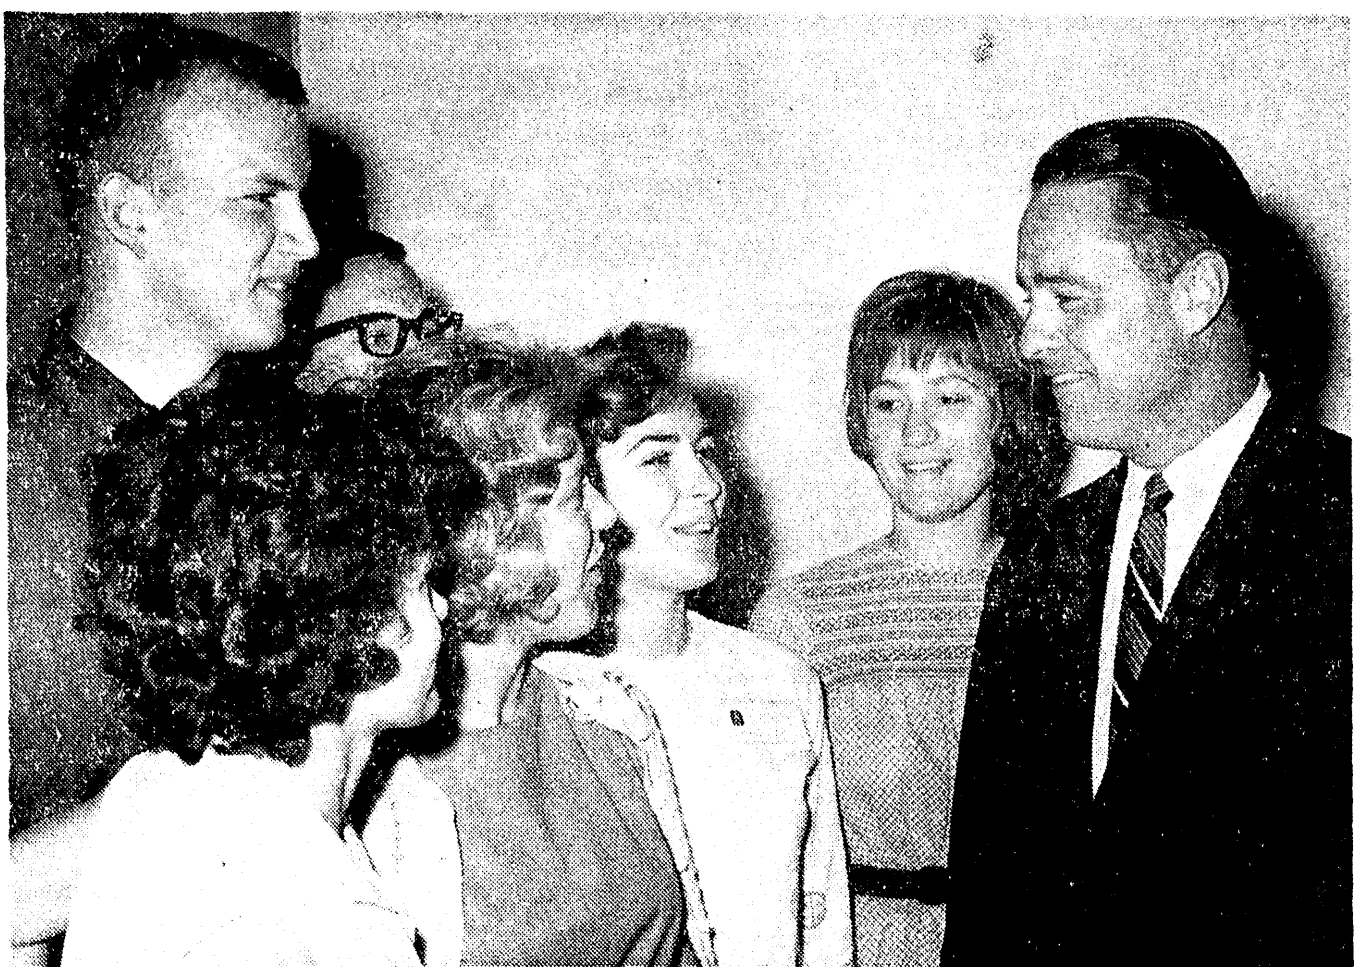

The role of the Peace Corps in the Johnson administration is just as secure as it was under Kennedy.

President Johnson headed the Peace Corps Advisory Council while he was vice president and has kept closely informed about its operations.

He and Shriver are close friends. There are widespread rumors that Shriver, dynamic, personable brother-in-law of the late president, may be tapped by Johnson to run for vice president next summer.

If Shriver does enter politics, or take another major job in the Johnson administration, indications are that Bill Moyers will take over the top job.

Moyers, a 29-year old Texan, is a personal aide to Johnson.

THE SUCCESS of the Peace Corps at home and abroad has turned the political spotlight on its director, Sargent Shriver (right). Brother-in-law of the late President Kennedy and close friend of President Johnson, Shriver is being talked about as possible Vice Presidential choice of Johnson in this year's campaign. Other rumors are that he might take on another major job in administration. Here Shriver talks with Peace Corps volunteers in training at Columbia University in New York. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

France Merely Following Lead Set By British

EDITOR'S NOTE—France is not the first of the Western powers to extend diplomatic recognition to Red China. Britain did so 14 years ago. In the following dispatch, a veteran AP diplomatic correspondent examines the question of what British recognition has meant.

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—If President Charles deGaulle had consulted Sir Alec Douglas-Home before recognizing Red China, Britain's prime minister probably would have told him:

"Go ahead, it makes sense. We'd do the same if the situation arose again because we think we were right. The Chinese ought not to be isolated. But don't expect wonders in your trade and other relations."

Britain's own trail-blazing act of recognition by a Labor government in 1950 aroused even more criticism from the United States and allies ever since. To a degree they than De Gaulle's move last Monday.

Fourteen years of stiffly correct dealings since then have failed to warm the British-Chinese relationship. No obvious rewards have come to this country's share of the once-lush China market. By 1962 it had risen to about $712 million, much of it purchases of grain and other emergency food supplies.

Britain's trading and political links with China go back 260 years. Oldtime merchant-adventurers pioneered the silk-and-spice route eastward in the early 18th century, forming a tradition that was at once romantic and profitable. By 1950, they had built up a commercial stake in China valued at about a billion dollars.

There never was much hope in London that those investments would be treated better than Communist interests at the time of British recognition. Within two years most of the great British merchant houses, or "hongs," withdrew. The Chinese shut down, leased or transferred their operations.

Presence of a British diplomatic mission in Peking, nevertheless, kept alive the chance that London still might win back its share of the once-lush China market. Traders have been preoccupied with that possibility since the United States and allies ever since. To a degree they than De Gaulle's move last Monday.

In 1947, when Gen. Chiang Kai-shek still controlled the mainland, the grand total of British Commonwealth trade with China was valued at $440 million. By 1962 it had risen to about $712 million, much of it purchases of grain and other emergency food supplies.

Britain's trading and political links with China go back 260 years. Oldtime merchant-adventurers pioneered the silk-and-recognition of Red China. Or Soviet differences. The fact of king over the years has been an envoy to London. It took the Peking-Moscow split was in festering source of argument about as long for the Chinese to receive Britain's representation but British and other Western diplomats have been able to study its development and manifestations first-hand from the Chinese side and so form their own assessments of an event crucial to the evolution of Western policy.

On the credit side: —Peking may well have with-held action against Hong Kong because of British recognition. The island-colony acquired by Britain in 1842 still functions as a vital clearing-house for China trade, as a port of call for the great shipping lines, as a window looking onto the mainland and as a living reminder to the Chinese of what life is like in the outside world.

On the debit side: —Peking's every link with the non-Communist world may well have been helped to lessen China's over-all reliance on the Soviet Union. The British have long argued that to isolate the Chinese had been misunderstood, might well have led to nasty blowups. World opinion would also be to limit the interplay of Chinese-

London's acceptance of the Communists as the lawful (de facto) rulers of China did not encourage Peking to set up full diplomatic relations. Each country is still represented in the other's capital only by a charge d'affaires, below the status of an ambassador. Peking went out of its way to underplay the importance of British recognition. It was four years before the Chinese sent an ambassador.

A spokesman said the widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, who was accused of killing Kennedy and then was in turn fatally shot himself, will appear at 10 a.m.

Warren Group To Hear Widow Of Lee Oswald

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Warren Commission investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy said Saturday it will take testimony from Marina Oswald at the commission offices in Washington Monday.

A spokesman said the widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, who was accused of killing Kennedy and then was in turn fatally shot himself, will appear at 10 a.m.

On the credit side: —Peking may well have with-held action against Hong Kong because of British recognition. The island-colony acquired by Britain in 1842 still functions as a vital clearing-house for China trade, as a port of call for the great shipping lines, as a window looking onto the mainland and as a living reminder to the Chinese of what life is like in the outside world.

On the debit side: —Peking's every link with the non-Communist world may well have been helped to lessen China's over-all reliance on the Soviet Union. The British have long argued that to isolate the Chinese had been misunderstood, might well have led to nasty blowups. World opinion would also be to limit the interplay of Chinese-

London's acceptance of the Communists as the lawful (de facto) rulers of China did not encourage Peking to set up full diplomatic relations. Each country is still represented in the other's capital only by a charge d'affaires, below the status of an ambassador. Peking went out of its way to underplay the importance of British recognition. It was four years before the Chinese sent an ambassador.

CHEVELLE! MALIBU SUPER SPORTS by CHEVROLET

Background, new Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe; foreground, Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Convertible.

What's so super about the Chevelle Malibu Super Sports?

Let's start with the inside. You get individually adjustable front bucket seats, soft, color-keyed leather-grain vinyl. Special instrumentation—ammeter, oil pressure and water temperature gauges. Bright metal console panel with either sporty 4-speed* stick shift or Powerglide* floor-mounted straight-line shift.

Under the hood? Lots of choice. Two Sixes—standard 120-hp and optional 155-hp*. Three V8's from the standard 283-cu.-in. job up to (you're reading it right!) 327-cu.-in.* Try this one to flatten out hills!

Some mighty appealing options*, too. Electric tachometer. Positraction rear axle, sintered metallic brake linings and sports-styled simulated walnut steering wheel, to name just a few of the many available.

Even the exterior says it's super—special moldings and emblems, special wheelcovers that define the highly maneuverable Chevelle 115-inch wheelbase. (Chevelle is smaller than the Jet-smooth luxury Chevrolet, bigger than the popular Chevy II, and fits beautifully in between them.)

Actually, about all that's not super about these Malibu SS Coupes and Convertibles is their price. And there's so much more to find out about them, the only right way to take it all in is to drive one. Your Chevrolet dealer can take care of that, too.

Need To Beat Gun Laws

With Sam Hanna

Pending In Congress

American citizens were granted the freedom of owning firearms in the Constitution, but legislation is pending in Congress that would practically destroy that right.

Since the assassination of President Kennedy, several anti-gun bills have been introduced in Washington apparently in an effort to keep guns out of the hands of people like Oswald.

The President's death brought on renewed efforts by members of Congress to curb the freedom of owning guns, despite Article II of the Constitution, which says:

"A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

Perhaps the best known anti-gun bill is the Dodd Bill, which was offered before the President was killed but amended after the assassination.

In its original form, the Dodd Bill had good merit in that it was designed to prohibit juveniles under 18 or adults with a criminal record or mental incompetence from ordering a gun through the mails.

But the Dodd Bill, now amended, provides that an affidavit must be executed by an applicant intending to purchase a gun by mail order, providing thereon his name, address, age, criminal record (if any), name and address of principal law enforcement officer, and whether or not the purchase would be contrary to state law.

In addition, the Dodd Bill provides that the affidavit must be furnished the seller who shall forward the same by registered mail with a return receipt requested, to the principal law enforcement officer of the locality in which the affiant resides. Only when receiving the return receipt may the seller lawfully execute delivery of the firearms.

In other words, this legislation provides police veto power over gun purchases. If this doesn't "infringe" on our rights to "keep and bear arms," then nothing ever will.

Even Senator Dodd must realize that his bill would not prevent a criminal or a misled youngster from getting a gun if he wanted it badly enough.

At the same time the bill would interfere with a basic freedom and tend to disarm a citizenry. History does not assure us that the citizens will not have to defend this nation again.

Yet, the Dodd Bill has an excellent chance to pass because the National Rifle Association, which has killed anti-gun bills before, has declined to oppose it. The NRA, with 612,000 members who apparently own guns, has stated publicly that it is not opposed to the bill.

While the Dodd Bill is dangerous enough, a bill introduced by Senator Scott after President Kennedy was murdered would require citizens to produce a permit from a law enforcement officer before purchasing a gun. Again, this is a case of police veto. What would it accomplish other than deprive the people of a basic freedom?

Still another bill in Congress would increase the license fee on the gun manufacturer and the gun dealer. This would increase the price of firearms, since the additional cost would be passed on to the consumer.

Fortunately, the people are beginning to speak out against these bills. The National Wildlife Federation, through its executive director, Thomas L. Kimball, has raised its objections.

Locally, the Louisiana Wildlife & Fisheries Commission adopted a resolution this week stating its opposition to the bills and so did the Ouachita Wildlife Unit. Letters of their resolutions are being written to the Louisiana delegation in Washington.

However, Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana indicated in a letter published last week that he favored the Dodd Bill. Congressman Otto E. Passman has said he's against it.

Despite expression from official groups like the commission and clubs like the local wildlife unit, the only way to kill these bills is for the people to demand that they be killed. If you are a member of the NRA, let the NRA know how you feel. And you should let Russell Long and his colleagues know how you stand too.

Congress cannot legislate morals, but it can defend our freedoms if we insist.

Catahoula Die-Off

A need for ammunition manufacturers to come up with a new kind of shot was brought out a few days ago with the die-off of ducks, caused by lead poisoning, on Catahoula Lake.

Catahoula is not an unusual case. Ducks have died down there before when the lake dropped to such a low level that lead shot was picked up by the waterfowl.

In fact, Dick Yancey, assistant wildlife director, says he doesn't believe the die-off was as big this year as it has been in previous years.

It happens when the mallards and pintails eat pellets accumulated in shallow areas a result of heavy hunting. The same would happen at Wham Brake or Black Bayou if the water got low enough.

A federal agent, Charles Van Carlton, said about 50,000 ducks died on Catahoula this year. It has been estimated that 2 million died annually in the United States from lead poisoning.

The Catahoula case gets attention because it's an open water lake where a sick duck stands out. Think about other lakes where ducks scoop up pellets, then paddle off to die in the brush.

Lead poisoning from pellets also kills dove and quail. In fact, it kills any bird that eats seed.

But perhaps someday a pellet made of something other than lead will be introduced to the market. Only then will we stop losing birds from lead poisoning.

"We feel that all this good water that is running down Lafourche Canal can be stored for a good purpose," Bud Tidwell said.

He has good points. Northeast Louisiana drains more water away than some areas in the nation have.

Little Man's Corner

The weather has been warm enough for fishermen and the little men made news afire.

At New Orleans, a new man has taken a post on the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission. He is Edwin Tyle of Berwick. Tyle was appointed by the governor to fill the vacancy left by John Catrone of Morgan City. Catrone's term expired.

Locally, three Northeast students, George Abbott, Irby Gamble and Ronnie Williams, caught 65 white perch in Bayou DeSiard. They were fishing near the college campus.

The three anglers used only 45 shiners to catch the 65 fish. All three fishermen are athletes in the Northeast program.

As a point of information, National Wildlife Week is March 15-21. Another point is the budget presented to Congress by the President. It contains a $2-million request.

FIRST OF HOME MEETS

Tribe Begins Gymnastics Competition Against LSU

Northeast State opens its third gymnastics season here Friday night against LSU in the first of two home meets.

The Northeast team, coached by Jerry Ainsworth this year, has a total of eight meets scheduled. The second and final home meet is slated March 21 when the Indian gymnasts host the Louisiana Intercollegiate Championships.

Northeast has enjoyed two excellent seasons under Barry Johnson, now at Louisiana State while he works toward his doctor's degree, and is expected to be represented by another good team this year.

The Indians have won five of nine meets in two years, including two straight dual meet victories over LSU.

Northeast has most of last season's performers in action this year. The returnees are headed by senior Gene Huffty of Bossier City, one of the South's top all-around performers for the past two years. He was the team's high scorer last year and is expected to lead the club in that department again this season.

Also back is Marvin Jordan of Heflin, the No. 2 scorer last year, as well as Monroe's Wynn Jefferson and Sam Walker, Jim Walker of Oak Grove and Duwayne Copeland of Rayville.

Huffty, Jefferson, Jordan and Jim Walker are beginning their third year of gymnastics. Huffty and Jefferson are co-captains of the team.

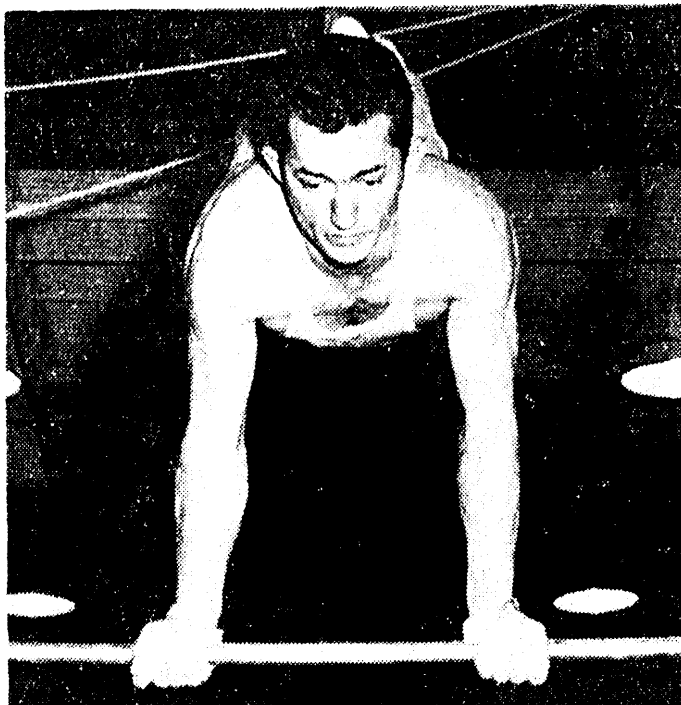

The newcomers are Jim Brasher and Dwight McLemore of Monroe, Bobby Bonnett of Oak Grove and Randy Curry of Bossier City.

Tickets for the season opener are currently on sale with adult tickets selling for 75 cents and student tickets for 50 cents. Advance means a savings of 25 cents since tickets at the door Friday will cost $1.

Tickets may be purchased at the Health and Physical Education office in Brown 105, the College Bookstore or from any member of the team, any H&PE major or Ainsworth.

Chisox Nab Four

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox signed four young players Saturday, putting 10 of the club's 43 listed candidates under contract.

GENE HUFFTY begins his third and final year of Northeast State gymnastics Friday night when the Indians open their season against LSU in a dual meet in Brown Gym. Huffty, a senior from Bossier City, was the Tribe's leading scorer last season.

Winnfield Girls Hosting Neville; Crown At Stake

WINNFIELD (Special)—The Winnfield Tigerettes, defending state Double-A champions, will host Neville Friday night. This game could decide the winners of District 2-AA.

In their first meeting, Neville edged out the Winnfield girls in a 53-51 thriller. Should Neville win Friday they become district champs. There are only two girls' teams in the district.

The Winnfield girls are now supporting a 22-6 record. While compiling this impressive record, the Tigerettes placed in every tournament they entered.

The Lady Bengals won first place at Quitman, Montgomery, Bernice, Winnfield and Winn Parish tournaments. They grabbed runner-up spots in the Sabine meet, the Tournament of the Pines at LaSalle High and the Sikos tournament.

Archers Plan Rabbit Hunt At Bow Range

The Tupawek Bowmen's Club will set off on a rabbit hunt at 1 p. m. today at the Tupawek range on Arkansas Road, West Monroe.

Any archer wanting to join is invited to come.

The Bowmen will have their regular meeting Monday night at the First National Bank, West Monroe, and members who have killed a deer with bow and arrow this season are asked to show up for a group picture.

The hunter who killed the biggest deer will receive a plaque.

SIFFORD FALLS OFF

Casper, Courtney Tie Classic In 4th Round

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Veteran Bill Casper Jr. and young Chuck Courtney—who is playing in only his fourth professional tournament—forged into a two-way tie Saturday in the fourth round of the marathon 90-hole $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

Casper, 34, a former National Open champion, and the 23-year-old Courtney, an ex-college amateur star, go into the final 18 holes today with a two-stroke lead. Both are from San Diego, Calif.

Casper, playing the Bermuda Dunes County Club course, one of four employed for the first four rounds, had a two-under-par 70, and apparently had taken sole possession of the top spot.

Abruptly came the word from the Indian Wells course that the unheralded Courtney had knocked out a five-under-par 67 to tie Casper with a 72-hole score of 279.

The deadlock was the fourth straight day that a tie resulted. Charlie Sifford, who had shared the lead in the three previous rounds, and British Open champion Bob Charles of New Zealand, the co-leader with Charlie starting out Saturday morning, fell back with a pair of 73s and a total score of 281.

Tied with Sifford and Charles was Randy Glover, 22-year-old newcomer from Florence, S.C., who had a 71.

Tied at 282 were Jimmy Demaret, with a 72; Davy Marr, with a 68, and Australia's Bruce Devlin, with a 70.

The pre-tournament favorites, defending champion Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, remained in the field, which was trimmed down to the low 60 scorers, but trail the leaders.

Nicklaus had a 72 for 286 and Palmer, who almost blew himself out of the desert with a 78 Wednesday, trimmed down to a 69 for 290.

Also on hand for the final round will be National Open champion Julius Boros, who had a 71 for 286.

Sifford, the former National Negro Open champion, held a slender one-stroke lead after nine holes, playing the rather feared Eldorado course. But Sifford, on the 10th hole, took a double-bogie 6 as he hit into a trap and three-putted the green. He finished with 35-38 for his 73.

Par for each of the courses is 36-36-72. The 41-year-old Sifford was tied by Tommy Jacobs in the first round, by Doug Sanders in the second and by Charles in the third.

SPRING FOOTBALL

Canine Practice Starts Tuesday

RUSTON (Special)—Four drills per week are planned for Louisiana Tech footballers who will start spring training Tuesday, according to Head Coach Joe Aillet.

Present plans are for drills to be held Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Under NCAA regulations, Tech has 36 days to get in 20 practices.

Plugging holes in the middle of the line as a result of graduation will be one of the main problems facing Canine coaches. Another will be the development of young quarterback talent to back up Billy Laird, the Shreveport slingshot who will be a junior this fall.

The departure of John Robert Williamson, Richard Enis, Wally Martin and Jerry Arledge leaves the main holes. Williamson was a center and the others guards.

Tech coaches are confident young talent will develop and plug the gaps.

Leading the players on the field will be the new tri-captains, end Pat Lynch of New Orleans, tackle Robert Malone of Springhill, and halfback Kerry Tidwell of Vivian. They were recently elected by their teammates.

Tech will face a 10-game state next fall, meeting the same nine foes of a year ago plus East Texas State. The Texans have not been on the Bulldog schedule for several years.

Twenty-seven lettermen will report for drills since the club had only eight seniors last season. A number of "redshirts" are also expected to step into the playing picture, plus a talent group of freshmen who will report next fall.

Barbara White In Final Round Of 4-Ball Event

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—Janey Woodworth of Hollywood and Gloria Ehret of Allentown, Pa. upset favored Phyllis (Tish) Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla. and Doris Phillips of Belleville, Ill. Saturday in the semifinals of the Women's International Four-ball Golf Championship.

The Woodworth-Ehret team overcame a three-hole deficit with three holes to play to tie the match on the 18th green, then won at the 22nd when both Miss Preuss and Miss Phillips three-putted for bogey 5s.

The winners will be opposed in the finals Sunday by Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La., and Julie Hull of Anderson, Ind. who beat Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., and Carolyn Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., 1-up in the other semifinal.

The finals will be over a 36-hole distance at Orange Brook golf course.

Miss Woodworth birdied No. 16, parred 17 and birdied 18 in sparking the late surge against Preuss-Phillips.

Junior All-State forward Pyl Love paced the WHS girls' scoring attack with 603 points for an average of 21.54 points per game.

Though there are those who say February, like Monday, should be stricken from the calendar, it's a favorite month of ours. Having more than its share of festive days, February offers more opportunities for "theme" parties.

Take, for example, the Valentine touches at a luncheon honoring bride-elect SALLY BARMAN on Thursday. Hostesses for this delightful party were DOT BREARD, GERRY SPERRY, BETTY GOYNE, and SARA McSHERRY. Red and white quince and camellias, some of the joys of February, were used throughout the McSherry home. On the dining room table were all - white quince and camellias.

Cleverest place cards-favors to be seen hereabouts of late were used here. At each place stood a small apothecary jar on which was painted a heart with the initials of a guest. The jars were filled with homemade mayhaw jelly, and the recipe for this treat written on a Valentine tied to the neck of the container. Truly a labor of love.

Before luncheon, the hostesses served a fruit punch sparked with pink champagne. The menu included chicken breasts with wild rice; asparagus au gratin; and broiled tomatoes; with Charlotte Russe for dessert. There were eighteen guests.

Guests from Dallas were honored by their hosts, the RICHARD BRIGHTS, at a small party last Sunday night. Honorees were JANE and FRITZ GLENNON, GWEN and JOHN LUCK. They were en route home from New Orleans and Mobile, stopped off here for one night.

On Saturday, her table with specimen pink camellias. The standing buffet included Swedish meat balls, tiny ribs, shrimp, chicken drumsticks, and several dips. Eighteen guests were invited to meet the visitors.

Duck supper was the treat when VICKY and SHELLY HILL were hosts for dinner last Saturday night. Spring flowers were used in decorations: a mixed bouquet in the dining room; a yellow nose-gay in the breakfast room. A duck decoy with dried materials was placed on the family room coffee table. The menu served to twenty guests included duck with dirty rice; sweet and sour beets; turnips stuffed with peas; avocado and grapefruit salad; hot biscuits with mint jelly; and for dessert, sponge cake with lemon filling.

The MILES SAGER home was scene of a neighborhood party Tuesday evening when Joan and Miles, JERRY and C. D. OAKLEY, JR. invited friends for supper. Joan centered her table with an arrangement consisting of a large white candle wreathed with ice foliage. White candles burned at each side. Sixteen guests enjoyed a dinner of duck, wild rice, and cafe au lait.

Luncheon at Bayou Desiard country club was planned Tuesday by MRS. WALKER BOGGS, honoring daughter EVELYN on her twenty-second birthday. A large birthday cake formed the centerpiece for the table on the porch. White cards with old English lettering marked places for eight guests.

Monroe bridge players did us proud at the tournament in Jackson, Mississippi, last weekend. Going over for the first afternoon's play were LORRETTA RIVERS, DONNA LEWIS, SALLY MARCHMAN, SALLY LAUVE, SUE CUTLER, and PEGGY McDONALD. Loretta and Donna brought home a trophy winning first in their section and placing second overall in women's pairs. Peggy and Sally Marchman were second in their section, fourth overall. ELISE MAPP and ELAINE MILLSAPS went over for events of Saturday and Sunday. They did not place in the trophy winners, but were awarded master points.

Pat Lary and Virginia Allen were first in masters pairs at the bridge tournament in El Dorado Friday.

This bids fair to be one of the busiest weeks of winter, what with a goodly number of civic, cultural, and social affairs on tap. This afternoon marks the opening of a show of children's art at the Art Center, 1504 Riverside. Included in the show are works in various types of media, chosen by teachers in the grammar schools and junior high schools of the Twin City area. This afternoon the Art Center will entertain with a coffee to which the public is invited between the hours of three and five. The show will remain up for three weeks, with the Center open daily except Monday from two until five.

Also on schedule for this week is the monthly program of the Art Center membership, set Wednesday night at 7:30 at the Louis Locke room, Ouachita Parish Public Library. This month the groups are to see the movie "Lust for Life" starring Kirk Douglas as begin work with the local cast. Those interested in taking part in the Follies, either dancing, singing, or backstage, are invited to the Talent Party at the Paragon ballroom tomorrow night. Work clothes are in order for the affair, which gets underway at 7:30.

On Tuesday, we have "The Boys From Syracuse," musical comedy hit being presented here by the Northeast State Concerts Association. This is the first national tour of the show, which is currently running in New York and London. Based on Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors," the book is by George Abbott. With score by Rodgers and Hart. Performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Neville High school auditorium.

Over two hundred Daughters of the American Revolution are expected to attend the annual February luncheon, set for this Saturday, February 8. BETTY DAVIS is chairman of the affair for Ft. Miro chapter. Members of Chief Tusquahoma chapter and of Abram Morehouse chapter also attend the luncheon. It is to be at the Paragon ballroom at one p.m.

Outstanding affair of the social year for Bayou Desiard country club is the annual Mardi Gras Ball, set for this coming Saturday, February 8. Theme selected for the ball is "Under the Big Top" according to FLO KELLY, general chairman. Decorations will carry out the theme, with members to costume accordingly.

The traditional court will be presented at nine p.m., with CONWAY CROSSLAND, club president, as king. Members' daughters in their first year out of high school will be maids, and are to be escorted by members of the Club's board of directors. There will be a parade of masks following the coronation of the queen, with dancing to the music of Phares Corder to follow until one a.m.

In place of a poem, today we quote from Don Herold's light essay entitled "Clams Are Not My Dish":

Once I loved a girl whom I loved my soul (talked my head off). She bounced me in favor of a monosyllabic Tarzan whom she described as "the strong, silent type." Since then I've been astonished at how frequently people who do nothing but keep their mouths shut are praised for it.

What's so wonderful about being a clam?

I prefer people who speak up, people who volunteer information, people with conversational carelessness. They may make some errors, but they give.

I am totally unimpressed by cagey men with poker faces, or bankers with glass eyes, or doctors who say nothing but "Hm!" and will not tell me my temperature, or by movie cowboys who just say "Yup." Many times I have finally succeeded in getting them to talk, and it has been worth something less than the effort.

I like people who wag judiciously like a dog, not people who pussyfoot through life. Chat- ters, spouters, blabbers and kids - they constitute 95 per cent of the spirited, kindly and sympathetic people of the earth. It's among these that you'll find the philosophers, the poets, the appreciators and the stimulators.

And if some of them should happen to be bores, I thank them for helping me find it out all the sooner. People who never talk nonsense never say anything profound. People who are afraid of being inconsequential are of no consequence.

Generosity - or the lack of it - is often the key. I've found that the silent individual is often hostile. The man who so politely conceals his knowledge is usually overestimating its extent. And a man who never interrupts isn't listening to you. But the man who talks about himself trusts you. And the man who "talks shop" likes his job.

I know that most of life's horrors counsel silence, such as "He who does not open his mouth will never put his foot in it." But how much more lively the world would be if we saw more people with their feet in their mouths!

So when I'm with you, let's talk and make our mistakes early, for which we can either love each other or part company soon.

Beevers-Hanchey Vows Read In Rayville Church

A double ring ceremony solemnized at 4 p.m. Saturday, February 1 in Rayville Methodist church, united in marriage Miss Billie Jo Hanchey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Billy Hanchey to Billy Rice Beevers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilborn D. Beevers, all of Rayville.

Rev. Richard E. Walton performed the vows with traditional wedding music provided by Mrs. F. L. Greaves Jr., organist and Jerry Futch, soloist.

An arrangement of white gladioli and white Dutch iris was used in the narthex of the church with similar blooms placed on the main altar where branched candelabra holding white tapers entwined with smilax formed a background for the candlelight service. Pews were marked with white satin bows, white gladioli, smilax and white tapers.

Mr. Hanchey gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown of bridal white peau de soie, was fashioned with semi-belted skirt appliqued with Chantilly lace in crescent design. The applique motifs were repeated on the fitted basque bodice, styled with scoop neckline and long-tapered sleeves ending in Calla points over the hands. The detachable train, also embellished with lace appliques, extended chapel length from an Old sash accented by hand-rolled roses and leaves. Her tiered veil of imported silk illusion fell from a crown of iridescent sequins and her only jewelry was a diamond pendant, a gift of the groom. She carried a crescent bouquet of white hybrid Dutch iris centered by a white cattleya orchid.

Mrs. Ronald Reece served as matron of honor and Miss Charlotte McCarthy, as maid of honor. Their gowns of Alpine rose peau de soie were designed with moulded bodices featuring scooped necklines and elbow sleeves. Hand-rolled roses were attached to self belts which encircled the waist of the semi-belted skirts. Their headresses were small pillbox hats of matching fabric with hand-rolled roses at the back. They wore matching slippers and carried crescent bouquets of light pink pompons. Bridesmaids, Miss Bonnie Beevers, Miss Sue Waite and Mrs. Ken Hollis were dressed identically to the honor attendants in gowns of Ballerina pink and carried bouquets of rose pink pompons.

The flower girl, Ann Marie Durham, wore a floor length frock of Ballerina pink on empire lines with underlay plaids of Alpine rose. She carried a nosegay of small chrysanthemums.

Mr. Beevers served his son jacket. And for military flavor as best man, and groomsmen—ushers—were James C. Adams

III, Billy Foster Johnson, Bob-Oswalt and James G. May. Ring bearers were James and Tom Kitchens, cousins of the bride. Candlelighters were Bob Meredith and Harvey Patton, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Hanchey, mother of the bride, was wearing a sheath of willow green brocade with matching double-breasted jacket and matching accessories. Her corsage was a yellow cymbidium orchid. The bridegroom wore a white three-piece brocade ensemble with accessories to match and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage.

Fellowship Hall of the church was scene of the reception which followed. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth, overlaid with white organza and held a central arrangement of pink pompons and carnations, flanked by white tapers in milk glass holders. Pink punch was served from a milk glass punch bowl by Mrs. Harvey Patton Jr., aunt of the bride, while Mrs. Alvin McCarty served the wedding cake. Miss Emily Seegers presided at the guest book and others assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Bernard Waite, Mrs. Stewart Byers and Mrs. Frank Scholer. Tea girls were Misses Paula Buie, Ellis Green, Dana Kervin, Carolyn Richardson and Lauren Johnston. Rice bags of pink tulle were distributed by Paula Meredith, Melanie Kidd and Debbie Kitchens.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans and the Gulf Coast the bride traveled in a white wool suit with leopard fur collar and buttons, complemented by a leopard hat and caramel lizard accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will establish a home in St. Louis, Missouri, where Mr. Beevers, who graduated in January from Northeast Louisiana State College, will be employed. The bride graduated from Rayville high school, attended Louisiana State University and is a senior at North-east. She will continue her studies at Washington University in St. Louis.

New Knits Get More Yak-Yak

How nutty are your knits? Bold stripes, kookie fringe and tassels used to be quite enough last year.

This year the spring idea is to get more yak-yak in yard with new shapes. The hip-slung vest, diagonal striped at that, is an example. So is a cutaway sweater—kind of knit tuxedo jacket. And for military flavor a turtle-necked, shirt-sleeved pullover with epaulets.

MRS. JAMES HARDY FONTENOT

Arcadia Church Scene Of Fontenot-Corley Vows

Miss Sharon Anne Corley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolen Guy Corley of Arcadia, became the bride of James Hardy Fontenot, son of Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Fontenot of Sulphur in a double ring ceremony performed by the father of the bridegroom on Saturday, February 1. Vows were exchanged in the First Baptist Church of Arcadia at 7:30 p.m.

White gladioli and white tapers in candle trees against a background of palm trees, English ivy and southern smilax formed a setting for the bridal party. Emmet J. Lee Jr., organist and Miss Peggy Lee of Arcadia, vocalist, presented appropriate wedding music.

Wearing a gown of white peau de soie and Chantilly lace the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bodice of lace featured a scalloped neck and elbow sleeves, outlined in pearls. The chapel train fell from a cluster of self-fabric roses at the back waistline. Lace medallions etched with pearls embellished the skirt front. Her veil of imported illusion fell from a single satin rose and she carried a single gladioli.

Mrs. David A. Walker, of Ruston, twin sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Newsom, Arcadia; Miss Sally Collins, Lisbon; Miss Sandra Rhodes, Winnboro; Miss Carolyn Morris, Shreveport. They wore full length sheath gowns of mint green peau de soie. Their headpieces were self-fabric circlets entwined with ivy and each carried a single gladioli with garlands of ivy. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Sue Fontenot, Sulphur, sister of the groom, and Misses Melissa McHenry, Houston, Texas, cousin of the bride and flower girl was Miss Kathy Sledge of Arcadia, all of whom were dressed like the other attendants.

Serving as best man for his brother was D. W. Fontenot of Sulphur and groomsmen included Jack Gwin, Amos Mann and Douglas McCullor, all of Sulphur and Barry Sanders, Minden. Ushers were Wayne M. Poynter and David Walker of Ruston. Candles were lighted by John Corley, Arcadia, brother of the bride and Michael McHenry of Houston, her cousin.

Mrs. Corley was wearing for the occasion a beige brocade gown with satin shoes and bag. The bridegroom's mother wore an early spring model with complementary accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church reception hall where the bride's table, covered with a ruffled white tulle cloth over satin, was centered with a crystal candelabra epergne holding white gladioli, roses and white tapers. Miss Dot Crawley and Mrs. Clarence Ethridge of Lake Charles presided at the bride's book. Members of the house party for the reception included Mrs. H. Gates McHenry, Houston, Texas, aunt of the bride; Mrs. J. W. Smith of Sylacauga, Ala.; Mrs. W. P. Hebert, Shreveport, aunt of the bride; Miss Mary Esther Roberson, Mrs. Joe A. Reeves, Mrs. H. Rupert Sledge, Mrs. George Woods, Mrs. Lamar Ozley, Mrs. Paul Sherrard and Mrs. T. A. Lowe Jr., of Arcadia.

Tea girls were Misses Kathy Roberson, Dusty Wharton, Judy Watts and Dinah McCalmon, and rice bags were distributed by Misses Sharlande Sledge and Kathleen Middleton, Arcadia.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs the bride was wearing a three piece suit of blue wool. They will be at home at Arcadia.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mack Hammons and the late Mr. Hammons of West Monroe and of Mrs. Homer J. Corley and the late Mr. Corley of Ringgold. A graduate of Arcadia high school, she is presently a senior at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute at Ruston and a member of Phi Mu. Mr. Fontenot graduated from Sulphur high school and attended Louisiana Tech. He is the grandson of Mrs. Lionel Landry of Lake Charles and J. M. Dubose of Orange and the late Mr. and Mrs. Thodile Fontenot of Crowley.

Ruffles Adorn Beach Wear

The rage for ruffles has affected several designers of resort wear, each in his own way. Leo Narducci of Loomtogs trims the V-neckline of a brightly printed, curve-conscious shift with an inch-wide ruffle. Silvano of Roma, designing for Heiser, finishes off the three quarter length sleeves of a straight cotton lace shift with a flourish of two rows of ruffles. At County Calicos, Claire Golden put ruffles at the hem of a wide, free-wheeling beach shift in a navy and white starfish printed cotton.

February Is Traditional Month For Engagements

Just as June is the traditional month for weddings, February is a traditional month for engagements.

And, rightly so with the month featuring Valentine's Day.

Something the girl thinks about just as soon as she accepts the ring is how to tell the world she's engaged. One of the best ways is to break the news at an announcement party.

Whether the party is formal or informal, it must have the appropriate romantic aura.

The Society of American Florists suggests four distinct yet easy-to-make centerpieces that would be appropriate for such announcement parties:

1. A hearts-and-flowers centerpiece made from an ordinary heart-shaped cake pan. The inside of the cake pan is filled with chicken wire; and lovely Sweetheart roses in faint pink and brilliant red, as well as foliage, are inserted.

2. A tiered (three tiers), heart-shaped cake, ringed and topped with miniature roses.

3. An enlarged corsage using the ever-popular combination of a gardenia with a few red rose buds on either side. For the centerpiece, use four gardenias and about four times as many red rose buds.

4. A traditional horizontal arrangement of pink gladioli and pink carnations, with two linked white hearts coming from the top of the arrangement.

Handbag Should Be Chosen For Size Of Wearer

A handbag can perfect or ruin the prettiest costume ever made. It should be chosen not only for its color and style, but for its proportions to the wearer.

Petite women should choose bags with vertical lines of design, and with more height than width. Not for them the horizontal clutch bag, unless it's a small one for evening.

Tall women should choose larger bags, and bags with horizontal length and detailing. But the overstuffed giant bag can make them look bigger, so tote should be sharply neat in outline, never bulging unnecessarily.

If hips are larger than one would like, avoid the handbag that rests at hip level. Either the handle should be longer, the bag a clutch bag, or large enough to mask the hip rather than cutting right across it.

Kimona Sleeve Big News In Spring Suits

The kimona sleeve is the big news in the soft suit that vies with the easy open jacketed Coco Chanel-type suit this year.

You would not have done it in other years, but you can expect to find polka dots, plaids and checked blouses worn with cheeks, even frilly organzas.

The mix-or-match neckline—that is, V-neck jacket over oval, or a square dress neck framing a ring neck—is another spring suiting innovation.

Cutting Advice Aids Seamstress

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—Check the direction of the pile on corduroy before cutting the pattern, say specialists of Illinois clothing specialists.

The pile must run in the same direction throughout the garment so adjoining parts will not look like two different shades. Also, corduroy will give more satisfactory wear if cut with the pile running down.

Valentine Cards Predate Christmas Greetings

Girls! It's Leap Year, and since Valentine's Day handily predates Leap Year Day by a mere matter of days, what better way is there to express one's intentions to one's intended than through the medium of a Valentine card.

Thoughtfully, the nation's greeting card publishers are aware of the fact and the sort of thing that looks like being a big hit with husband hunters is a Valentine that humorously gets right to the point. "Just three little words, 'It's Leap Year' a gal says. She's pictured holding a spring trap.

The 1964 Valentine card has a long story of evolution behind it. The custom of sending cards to loved ones on St. Valentine's Day predates the Christmas card by some two hundred years. The Romans are credited with being the originators of the holiday of love. They celebrated the feast of Lupercalia on February 14 when love letters dropped in urns by unmarried girls were drawn for by swains of the community.

Although no statistical survey has ever been made of the love matches resulting from the custom of sending Valentine cards, St. Valentine's Day has always been a busy day for marriage license bureaus. And, twice as many couples as those who choose an ordinary day to tie the knot, name February 14 as their nuptial day.

James Fales, sales manager for Norcross Inc., one of the country's leading greeting card publishers, predicts that more than 600 million valentines will be exchanged among the rest of the population this year.

"The figure tops last year's record by well over five percent," he said. "This age-old custom of remembering loved ones on February 14 with an appropriate missive seems to become more solidly entrenched each year. With Americans numbering 188,766 million at the latest census count, this means we'll be receiving approximately 3.18 Valentines apiece in 1964."

The trend this year is for Valentine cards that express sentiment in an informal but sweet manner. This gentle affection is typified in a whimsical card that shows a cute figure surrounded by a heart made of pebbles. "As far as I'm concerned the caption reads, 'You ARE the only pebble on the beach'."

The frankly "romantic" Valentines are loaded with sentiment and the traditional adornments of hearts and flowers.

Soft, Feminine Dresses Predominant For Spring

A soft spring is in the air for spring essential for elegants, and dresses. Fashion enters an era of romance, with the mood of the new season reflected in the gentle fit and feminine details of softer shifts, shirtwaists and skimmer styles. Blousing, bias cuts, ruffles, pleats, softly drawn necklines and sleeves, drooping collars and big floppy bows are sure to make every woman look and feel her prettiest this spring. Easy-skirted styles have new swing and flare, while fuller skirts make a comeback. In a spring of romantic dresses, it's only natural that many of the most feminine and flattering styles have soft empire shaping. But the dropped waistline is youthfully important, too, in "stretched-out waistline looks" that often end in a flounce or flare. The natural waistline makes a fashionable reappearance for spring in dresses in soft, housey bodices and fuller skirts. Spring's new costume concepts include stretched-out pleated skirt dresses with blazer jackets, dresses with capelets and sleeved dresses with sleeveless coats. The gently shaped coat dress and pseudo-suit, which is really a one-piece dress that just looks like a suit, complete the spring dress picture. Spring's sleeve is long and skinny, deep and wide, funnel or cape shaped. Although the sleeved look is most feminine, there will be plenty of sleeveless dresses for women who prefer them. Necklines make news for Spring. After the sun goes down daring dresses really go to town with beautifully bared U-shaped scoop, circular and plunge necklines, replacing the "covered-up" look. "The long dress is now an eve-

White Collar Shirts Seen For Spring

A new blouse fashion will take spring by storm. It's the shirt-blouse in patterned color with white collar and cuffs.

Typical is Lady Van Heusen's English striped shirt with full sleeves cuffed in white, white Peter Pan collar. More feminine is Joe Fliegelman's navy dotted Swiss blouse-shirt with open-collared.

From California Holiday come two versions. One is a gingham check with white collar and dickey front, buttoned white cuffs. Another is a floral pattern with white French cuffs and collar with deep points.

Necklines make news for Spring. After the sun goes down daring dresses really go to town with beautifully bared U-shaped scoop, circular and plunge necklines, replacing the "covered-up" look.

"The long dress is now an eve-

YOUR PROBLEMS

Elegant Homes Don't Make For Happiness

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Fifteen years ago I divorced my husband because he was a Tom Cat and a liar. Our daughter was two years old at the time I went to work because the support check always seemed to get lost in the mail.

Three years ago the Tom Cat married a woman with a big house and a healthy inheritance. Our daughter spends every other weekend with her father and his wife. Of late the girl has become critical of me, my clothes, our home, our furniture and the meals. She tells me they live graciously "over there" (two servants) and that I could take lessons from her father's second wife on how to be charming. This morning she informed me her father was a wonderful man and that I was a fool to let him go.

How do you tell a 17-year-old girl that her father was a chaser and a louse?—OUT-CLASSED

Dear Friend: You don't tell a girl of any age that her father was a chaser and a louse.

You tell her that you have done your best and that furniture, servants and fancy meals don't necessarily make a home happy. Some of the world's loneliest people live a miserable existence in elegant homes.

Dear Ann Landers: How about settling an argument? I want to buy a pair of heels for dress and my folks think I should stick to flats. I am 17 years of age and 5'8" tall. My folks keep telling me I will be taller than most of the boys if I wear heels. I say, "So what?"

I love the way heels look and I don't care if they do make me taller than the boys. Will you decide this for me? Do I get heels or not?—UP OR DOWN

Dear Up: And that's my advice. Up with your head, up with your shoulders and get up on those heels if you want them. It's how you feel about your height that counts, and you feel just fine. So congratulations and enjoy your new slippers.

Dear Ann Landers: Our grandfather is 86 years old. The doctor said there wasn't anything more they could do for him in the hospital and he suggested an "Old Folks' Home" where grandpa could get nursing care.

Every night after supper our parents insist that my brother and I go with them to visit grandpa. I am 16 and my brother is 14. We don't see any point in killing two hours every evening sitting in a room with somebody who doesn't even know who we are.

Mom says the least we can do for grandpa is to be with him during his last days. Meantime we aren't getting our homework done because by the time we get home the evening is shot. If you say we should be excused from going at night and just go Sundays we'll show your advice to our folks and it will help us a lot.—WALL-PAPER STUDIES

Dear Studiers: It makes no sense whatever for teen-age kids to spend two hours every evening visiting someone who doesn't know they are there.

If your mother and dad feel they must go, fine. But you and your brother should stay home and do your school work.

Confidential to TIED OF THE RAT-RACE: Your husband has a false set of values. Try this little bit of Thoreau on him: "A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone."

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Patricia Alice Dees to Airman Third Class Clark A. Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cain of Pensacola, Florida, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Dees, 208 Western Avenue, West Monroe. Wedding plans will be announced at a future date.

Newest Girdle Offers Spray On Control

AP NEWSFEATURE

Girdles with control panels that are sprayed on, instead of sewn in, were shown at the January foundationwear market in New York. They are expected to be in stores by late March.

The control panels are a flocking substance that is sprayed on the basic net fabric in floral designs. The flocking has no definite edge to show through whatever you wear over it, which should especially please stretch pants wearers. There are no bulky seams either.

The manufacturers say the spray-on panels give better control and more comfort.

Teenager Seeks Advice On Bedroom Decor

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I am a teen-age girl and need advice on decorating my bedroom. Walls are a light oak paneling, ceiling is white. My studio couch is covered in a sage green. What colors do you suggest for curtains, a small rug and toss pillows? Incidentally, I live in a trailer.

A: Select a small-scale, gay looking print in a ground that is a paler color of the wood with white, sage green, apricot and Bristol blue in the pattern. Have the rug a Bristol blue and toss pillows in the print as well as solid apricot and Bristol blue.

or for a hooked or braided area rug. Chair and toss pillows for sofa could be in a small scale documentary print, one with a pale blue ground with curry and clear greens.

Q: Our living room has Danish modern furniture. Walls are white and draperies are white with irregular block lines and red squares. Sofa bed is purple. What colors do you suggest for slip covers on two chairs and what color for carpet? Would different shades of blue be suitable for the chairs?

A: Yes, different shades of blue should look fine for the chairs. Rug could be a simple geometric design in black and white if an all off-white is impractical. Pick up red in small accessories.

FLAT BOLSTERS

Flat bolsters have replaced both pillows and round bolsters as the favored finishing touch on the well-made bed. The flat latex foam rubber bolsters have zippered slipcovers that match the bedspread. When you change covers on the foam rubber bolster. Most of the bolsters shown are rectangular, but some have curved or scalloped edges.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

Northeast Slates Scholarship Tests

Northeast Louisiana State College here will give opportunity this month to high school seniors throughout the state to take tests for valuable scholarships grants, announced H. R. Sigler, director of testing and guidance at the College.

Examinations will be given at Northeast and six off-campus centers. Tests are scheduled in other towns for convenience of students in those areas. Later they will be invited to see the results of their tests and visit the college campus.

Testing at Northeast is set for Friday and Saturday, February 14 and 15, with seniors selecting either date, Mr. Sigler said.

Yo-Yo Champion Coming To Delhi For Appearance

DELHI (Special) — The winner of the only yo-yo world's championship will appear here Friday.

"Bunny" Martin, who won the title of "Yo-Yo Champion of the World" in 1951 at Toronto, Canada, over 500 competitors, is scheduled to appear at the Delhi Country Club in connection with the First Baptist Church's annual Sweetheart banquet.

Martin will be guest speaker. Martin, who is director of youth recreation at Highland Baptist Church in Shreveport, also plans to perform tricks with a yo-yo.

Some of the features in his act are the "Atomic Bomb," fireworks with yo-yos and a haircut trick.

Theme of the banquet will be, "Paris, City of Love."

Members of the Student Services Division, headed by Dean Fred J. Vogel, will administer tests off campus on February 15. James F. Hawkins, supervisor of scholarships and placement and alumni relations, will be at Byrd High School, Shreveport, and Dean Vogel will be at Ferriday High School.

Students who are unable to take examinations on that date because of previous commitments or illness will be able to do so on February 21, Mr. Sigler said.

Other out-of-town testing is scheduled February 22 and will be given at the following places by administrators in the Student Services Division: Bolton High School, Alexandria; Miss Alma Lufey, counselor to women; Fortier High School, New Orleans; Dean Vogel; Haynesville High School, Dr. Lake Oxford, registrar; Istrouma High School, Baton Rouge; Dr. Woodrow Flannery, associate professor of education and director of the reading laboratory. Scholarship applicants may take the test at any of these places.

Examinations at Northeast and high schools will begin at 8 a.m. Students will have opportunity at all places to confer with college administrators after tests are completed.

Examinations are preliminary screening devices for scholarship applicants, Sigler explained. All students must have a "B" average to be eligible for the tests. Further evaluation will be based on additional data, recommendations by high school principals and counselors before the final selection is made in March.

To qualify for the test, a student must file an application blank, which will be available in the principal's office.

NO' BOXES SEALED

Nigerian Voting Causes Odd Quirks

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Dispatches from Ghana report odd things happened last week in a referendum sponsored by President Kwame Nkrumah to amend the constitution of that West African nation.

Ballot checkers at a counting center in Accra, the capital, wore Kwame Nkrumah T-shirts and large red "vote yes" badges.

A disgruntled poll officer said the "no" boxes in his rural district remained sealed "so no body could vote no even if they wanted to."

Residents of a city in the Ashanti region, summoned to vote Tuesday, told of finding their names already checked off when they arrived at the polling station.

"Just holding places in line for their parents" was the official explanation when school children filed into another voting place.

The referendum, certain of passage, is to legalize what already exists — single party Socialist rule. It also aims to increase pressure on a judiciary which in the past has shown signs of independence.

Unofficial returns so far show 1,142,205 voted in favor of constitutional changes and 2,452 voted no. Final figures are expected this week.

Nkrumah's name "People's Party" called on the estimated 2.9 million voters for sanction to become formally the country's only legal political party and for permission to fire high court judges "for reasons which appear to be sufficient."

Those who think they can hide under the so-called secrecy of the polling booth to fool us must know that the days of that kind of trickery are gone."

The government-owned Evening News warned "the ungrateful wretches" who voted in opposition:

"There is no excuse whatsoever for this shameful stab of the country in the back. They shall perish by their own treachery and the blood that is now being to high heaven for revenge shall be avenged."

Finding out who voted "no" will be simple. Voters entered polling places and had their names checked off on a register. The serial number of each voter was written on his ballot and on the counterfoil from which the ballot was torn. Voters then stepped behind a screen and deposited a "secret" ballot.

Stamp News

Philatelic history was made recently when Pope Paul VI visited the area of the Holy Land. For the first time the Leader of the Catholic Church was honored by Israel with a special bilingual cancellation in Hebrew and Latin commemorating the visit of the Holy See to Nazareth. A copy of this cancellation was forwarded to the Associated Press by the Penny Black Stamp Co. of Dunsmuir, N.J., and it will surely be considered a collector's item because of the historical significance of the occasion.

The U.S. Post Office Department announced that commemorative postage stamps will be issued this year for the New York World's Fair and to mark anniversaries in Nevada and New Jersey. The World's Fair stamp will first be issued in Flushing, N.Y., on April 22, opening day of the fair. The Nevada stamp will commemorate 100 years of statehood and the New Jersey stamp will herald the 200th anniversary of English acquisition of that state. Dates and places of first-year issuance have not been set for either. All three stamps will be 5-centers. In addition to the World's Fair commemorative, a 5-cent embossed envelope will also be issued at the same time.

The 1964 edition of the Minkus Regional Catalogs are now on the market. Produced in economical paperback, these catalogs provide easy portability for collectors who wish to carry their information in their back pockets. The catalogs are British Commonwealth, Free Asia and Africa, Austria, the French Community of Nations, Latin America, Germany, Italy and colonies, Scandinavia and Baltic countries. The prices range from $1 to $3 and the books are available at your local stamp dealers.

The Republic of China has celebrated the 10th anniversary of Liberty Day with a set of two new postage stamps, reports the World-Wide Philatelic Agency. Both stamps depict universal symbols of liberty. One shows a Torch of Liberty and the other shows a pair of hands with broken wrist shackles reaching from darkness into the light. It is also interesting to note that the Republic of China will issue a set of commemorative stamps honoring the New York World's Fair in April.

DRAMATIC LIGHTING on these interesting profiles is enhanced by proper enlarging. Originally there was a slight confusion of people in the background. It is minimized by "burning in" the area in front of the faces to get an over-all dark tone. L. to r: Del Daves, writer, director and producer of "Spencer's Mountain," and Mrs. Louise Turner, hostess of the film's stars during shooting at her Jackson, Wyo., ranch.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

For a good quality enlargement, it is often necessary to alter the existing tones of the original negative. If the negative were printed "straight," that is without any manipulation, some portions of the resulting print might be too dark while other portions might be too light.

Changes can be made by manipulating the light in the process of exposure of the enlargement. Some of the light can be prevented from reaching the paper in those areas which will otherwise come up too dark. On the other hand, extra light must be funneled to those areas which would normally come up too light.

ARTISTIC SKILL

With experience, dark-room addicts can juggle their hands and fingers with artistic skill to accomplish these results, a beginner must take it slowly and learn how his finger or hand blocking part of the light from reaching the "thin" portions of his negative results in a better enlargement. He'll also learn to make a circle by bringing the tips of his thumb and forefinger together and letting the enlarger light shine through his opening to "burn in" the dense portions of his negative while blotting out the light from other areas. At all times the hands are kept in perpetual motion to prevent a discernible dark or light area from showing in the print.

Another way to get the effect of "dodging" or "burning in" is by using retouching dyes directly on the negative to add to, or reduce, the density of any specific area. When correctly done, this eliminates the necessity of any manipulations when making prints thereafter.

To add density or to darken a negative area in order to lighten that print area, use neo-coccine or Crocein Scarlet. Prepare a stock solution by dissolving a level teaspoon of the dry powder in one pint of water.

The stock solution may be used to opague a background or to vignette a photo. For general use, however, the stock solution is diluted with three parts of water. Use a sable or a spotting brush to work with. Apply the dye with a light touch, in small varied strokes on the negative base, not the emulsion side, over a light box, ground-glass or other means of grading the effect as you work.

If mistakes are made, the dye can be lightened or removed by washing the negative in running water.

USE DYE

If you do not wish to work on the negative, you can apply the dye to a piece of clear acetate or a fixed-out clear negative and sandwich it to the original negative. The Crocein Scarlet is bright red so the retouched area is easily seen. By looking through a green or blue filter, the extent of the added density can be judged as an over-all tone.

To reduce areas of heavy negative density, potassium ferricyanide or Farmer's Reducer is applied. The negative should be thoroughly soaked in water first and kept wet. The stock solution of reducer is diluted with about 10 parts of water. It is applied repeatedly with a cotton swab with intermediate rinsing until the desired reduction is obtained.

It's a good idea to practice with the additive and reducing dyes on a spare negative until the technique is mastered. For other helpful hints on making better enlargements you might consult the newly revised Kodak data booklet, "Professional Printing," available at your camera dealer.

Theatre Group 'Planting Seeds'

NEW YORK (AP)—To encourage the younger generation's interest in Broadway theatrical fare, the Shubert organization plans to distribute a half million free tickets annually through the Board of Education.

Lawrence Shubert Lawrence Jr., head of the firm that operates 17 of the White Way's 35 playhouses, said principal producers have approved the plan. "We're planting the seeds," he said "there'll be rich rewards."

HELPS KID MOVIES

NEW YORK (AP)—A play that kids movie-making is being partly financed for Broadway by Hollywood's big 20th Century-Fox studio.

"Never Live Over a Pretzel Factory," set for March 25 premiere, is by Jerry Devine, a TV and screen writer. The story concerns how a trio intent on making a small art film get involved with an alcoholic star who induces them to expand their plans to epic proportions.

CURTAIN CALL

In becoming "The Wizard of Oz," we admit that we "Once Upon A Mattress." V. P. the original Broadway version Little Theatre role in six years. Previous musicals include "The Pajama Game," "Guys And Dolls" and "Annie Get Your Gun," while V. P. has also appeared in "The Diary of Anne Frank," "Inherit the Wind," "Caine Mutiny," "The Gazebo," "Janus," "Witness For The Prosecution," and "The Mousetrap."

A native of Delhi and now a popular teacher in the parish school system, V. P. has proved a very versatile performer on our stage. A few others like Frank Breese have exceeded him in number of parts, but we doubt if anyone has accumulated so many in so short a time. Beryl Franklin runs him a close second.

Another Delhi native, Chuck Stancart, may well be the most traveled member of the cast. Now a Northeast student, Chuck completed high school on Okinawa and even has an Okinawa driver's license. While there with his family, he spent a memorable vacation in Japan.

REHEARSALS

Rehearsals of "Once Upon A Mattress," have already reached the run-through stage. The chorus work for the vocal numbers has made quite an impression on visitors, especially in the big finale at the close of the show.

Charles Cook and George Hargus have been lending a hand with backstage preparations for the show. Lanny Frazee intends to have all sets ready a full week before opening and can use all the volunteer help he is offered.

We knew some people in California who had revived the art of lute playing, but we hope that someone may have a lute closer at hand to lend us for "Once Upon A Mattress." The distinguishing characteristic of a lute is its pear-shaped body, in contrast to the flat back of the guitar. If you know where we might obtain one, please call Richard Clark or Lanny Frazee at FAirfax 3-1235.

Treasurer Russ Kettnering has presented Little Theatre with a fine example of his craftsmanship in the form of a movable counter for our new office. We still need one or two serviceable filing cabinets.

Early 1964 Sees Large Stock Gain

NEW YORK (AP)—As the first month of 1964 ended the stock market averages were considerably higher than on the last trading day of 1963.

The Dow Jones industrial average in January rose 22.39 to 785.34.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 5.1 to 290.6. January once again was a month of reinvestment demand, as it has been so frequently in the past. Buying of blue chips characterized the month although progress at times was slow and the upward movement confused by profit taking and switching.

In the week just ended the market showed signs of turning tepid. While averages made historic highs early in the week more stocks were declining than advancing in the over-all list.

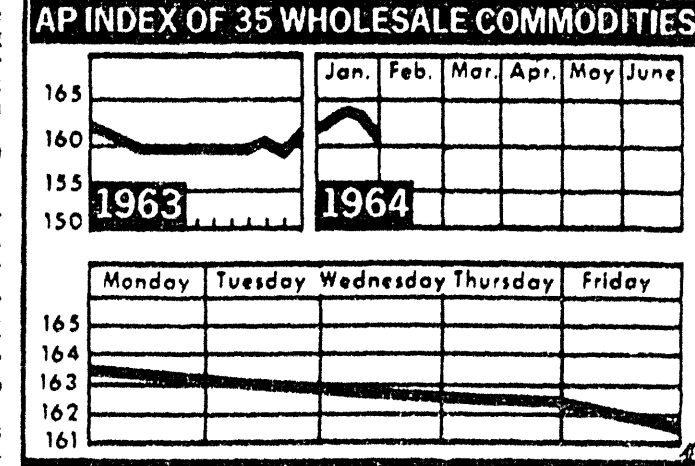

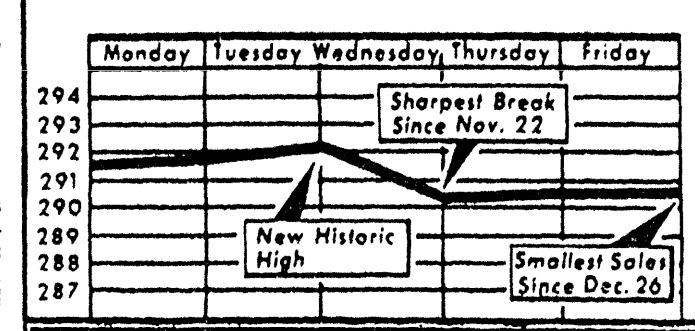

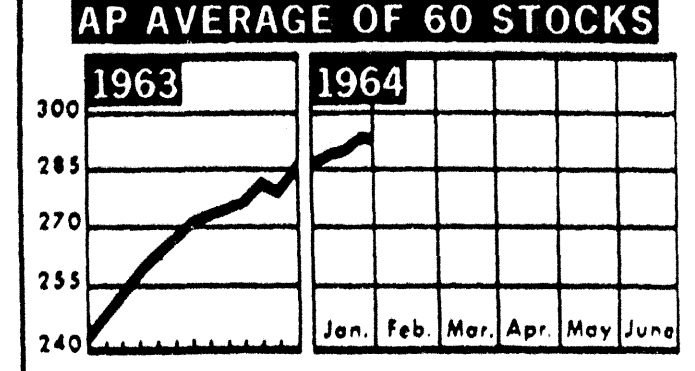

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues emerged from the week with a gain of 2.39 at 765.43, reflecting the strength of a scattering of blue chips. The over-all market was definitely lower. Of 1,513 issues traded, 858 declined and 474 advanced.

Registered its first weekly decline in five weeks, the AP 60-stock average fell 1.0 to 290.6.

The stock market action was backgrounded by an almost unbroken front of encouraging economic and business news.

General Motors, the biggest manufacturing corporation, reported record profits, well over the billion-dollar mark, for the second straight year.

AP AVERAGE OF 60 STOCKS

FOR THE FIRST time in five weeks, Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined, closing at 290.6 from 291.6 a week ago. The commodity index dropped for second straight week, closing at 161.6 from 163.4 the previous week. Food and grains decline. (AP Wirephoto)

SALES UP

B. W. Biedenhorn of Ouachita Candy Co. has returned from San Antonio where he attended a meeting of the Pearl Beer distributors. He said Pearl general manager A. J. Range reported the 1963 sales were up 5.4 per cent and the earnings up about 30 per cent.

Robert Jr., advertising director, told the distributors their sales for 1964 would be supported by increased schedules of newspaper, television and outdoor advertising.

Biedenhorn said the company operates breweries in San Antonio and St. Joseph, Mo.

ACQUIRES STOCK

At a special stockholders meeting of United Insurance Company of America, Jack M. Penrith, executive vice president, reported that the stockholders had approved the acquisition of the business and assets of the Quaker City Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pa. and Bankers Health and Life Insurance Company of Macon, Ga.

The board of directors of United Insurance Company of America had approved the Quaker City acquisition on Nov. 15, and it was referred to the special stockholders meeting for final approval.

INCOME RISES

SHREVEPORT (Special)—Net income of United Gas Corporation for 1963 amounted to $30,387,652, as compared with $29,224,747 in 1962, it was announced here by Ed Parkes, president. Per share earnings were $2.35, an increase of nine cents per share over the previous year.

"The increased earnings in 1963," Parkes said, "was a continuation of the upturn of earnings begun in 1961. The three year increase totals 33 cents per share."

Operating revenues of $421,336,442, were the highest in the company's history and exceeded 1962 by $17,816,066. The volume of gas sales increased five per cent while natural gas revenues of $364,614,184 represented an increase of $19,287,210 or six per cent above the prior year, according to Parkes.

SERVICE PINS

Director O. P. Heffington of the Federal Housing Administration in Shreveport presented length-of-service pins to members of his staff in a general assembly Monday who have completed fifteen and twenty years of Government service.

Sterling silver pins for fifteen years of service were awarded to Robert W. Allen, chief appraiser, 3029 W. Cavett Dr. and James E. Hall, title representative, 520 Browning St.

Sterling silver pins for twenty years of service were presented to Fred H. Hisey, loan specialist (really), 2545 Vivian St.; Jack Malone, mortgage servicing specialist, 172 Pennsylvania Ave.; and Jarrett M. Stephens, mortgage servicing assistant, 2755 W. Caperton St.

Corporation Profits Rise At Boom Rate

NEW YORK (AP)—Corporation profits rolled in at a boom rate in 1963.

This was evident during the week as many major companies reported big increases in earnings over 1962.

"We ought to be able to move ahead steadily through this year and have one of the best years we have had, and that ought to continue into next year," he said.

"It looks like we will have our four years of improvement, which is the best we have had in peacetime—ever."

His forecast was conditioned on passage of the $11-billion tax-cut bill which may be enacted by Congress next week.

The profit parade was led by General Motors Corp., the world's biggest manufacturer, which in 1963 had the highest earnings and sales of any corporation in history.

The No. 1 automaker earned $1,592,000,000, or $5.56 a share, on sales of $16.5 billion. The previous record was $1,532 billion by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in the year ended last Nov. 30.

All of the major auto companies have reported higher earnings for 1963.

It was a good year, too, for the steel industry. The top producer, U.S. Steel Corp., earned $202,913,826, or $3.28 a share, against $163,639,817, or $2.56 a share, in 1962. However, Chairman Roger Blough said the percentage of profit to sales wasn't satisfactory.

Bothehem, Jones & Laughlin, National Steel, Armco, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Pittsburgh Steel also came in with favorable earnings reports.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) entered for the first time the select circle of companies with profit of $1 billion or more. The company earned $1,015,000,000 or $4.68 a share, up from $840,900,000, or $3.88 a share, in 1962.

The cost of living took an unusual step higher in December. It was only the third time in the last 10 years that the consumer price index had risen in December.

The Labor Department said higher vegetable and sugar prices were mainly responsible for pushing the over-all living costs up two-tenths of 1 per cent over November.

The index advanced to 107.6, meaning that it took $107.6 to buy items that in the 1957-59 base period cost $100.

President Johnson asked Congress to make it possible for workers in selected industries to receive double pay for overtime as a means of widening employment opportunities.

The idea was to encourage industry to spread employment rather than pay overtime for work at peak seasons.

The President also submitted to Congress a draft of legislation to increase overtime and minimum wage protection for more than two million workers.

Machine tool orders, a key economic barometer, spurted in 1963 to $330,000,000, up 30 per cent from 1962. The total was the highest since 1958.

Automobile production during the week was estimated at 169,900 cars, down from 178,471 the previous week but up from 151,172 a year ago.

Oil Industry Earnings Are Up For 1963

Despite Depressed Prices; Financial Reports Are In

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Most oil companies are reporting record earnings for 1963 despite concern over depressed prices.

Most of the preliminary financial statements released so far by major firms detail a parade of operations records but pinpoint depressed prices as the most discouraging factor of the record-smashing year.

Major factors behind the healthy reports are record production levels and record sales of crude oil and natural gas and sold more petroleum products, gas and petrochemicals than ever before in history.

There has been some fear of a slump in earnings the first nine months of 1963 would be curtailed a bit by a slow October-December fourth quarter. This fear was unfounded, however, in that many of the new earnings records are considerably above 1962, the previous record year.

Texasco Inc., for example, reported a 13.3 per cent increase in 1963 profits but said a 13.4 per cent October-December gain gave the company its best quarter in history.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) became the first oil firm to push its profits into the billion-plus bracket. M. J. Rathbone, board chairman, was among those crediting sales volume instead of prices.

"Our sales of petroleum products worldwide were more than four per cent higher, although pressures on product prices continued throughout the year," Rathbone said.

Jersey Standard's earnings of $1,015 million were 21 per cent above 1962 when an 11 per cent gain boosted profits to $840.9 million.

Texasco boosted its earnings to $545.6 million, passing the one-half billion mark the first time. Augustus C. Long, board chairman, said gross production increased 5.4 per cent, refinery runs 6.7 per cent, and product sales 6.8 per cent.

The estimated earnings of $371 million for Gulf Oil Corp., represent a 9 per cent increase, compared to only 1 per cent in 1962. Gulf attributed a major part of the improvement to U.S. production and sales volume.

Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) estimated its profits at $183 million. This represented a 13 per cent increase, compared to 5.6 per cent a year earlier.

John E. Swearengen, president, said Indiana's gains result from record production and sales from increased efficiency and economies.

"Average refined product prices for the year were essentially unchanged from 1962," Swearengen said.

Shell, Sun and Continental also reported record profits.

Continental's earnings of $87.4 million were 18 per cent above 1962 when a 7 per cent gain had led to an all-time high.

L. F. McCollum, president, said Continental's improvement resulted from expanded sales of Libyan crude oil, increased dividends from non-consolidated affiliates, and income from property sales.

"These improvements were offset partially by lower average prices received for petroleum products in the United States," he said.

McCollum the 1963-1964 board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, had said in late December part of the industry's potential earnings from increased oil sales had been dissipated through lower prices domestically and abroad.

He said U.S. crude and product prices, both wholesale and retail, have been under downward pressure since 1957 and experienced modest declines in 1963.

Wheat finished the week under pressure which brokers said was linked with President Johnson's farm message to Congress. Market analysts said the President seemed to have left no doubt that the administration will insist on the certificate plan for wheat production control this year.

At the end of the week, wheat was 24 1/4 to 4 cents a bushel lower, March $2.18-18 1/2, soy beans 6 1/2, lower to 1 1/2 higher, March $2.68-68 1/2, corn 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 lower, March $1.20-1 1/4, oats 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 lower, March $1.48-1 1/4, rye 4 1/4-7 1/4 lower, March $1.48-1 1/4.

Plenty Of Food Aid Moose With Family Living

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Alaska's Kenai Peninsula in 1957. Friday Standard's land department manager, D. G. Novillo, told the results to the National Industrial Conservation Conference.

"As we built roads, we cleared adjacent strips of about seven acres to the mile as extra forage area. With less time required in the struggle to avoid winter starvation, the moose turned to other pursuits.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who are building a new house or thinking of buying a new cook stove or range:

May I suggest that they look into the possibilities of buying two apartment-size kitchen stoves or ranges and setting them side by side? They take up no more room than one large range.

This provides many more burners than one range does. Also two ovens!

It's surprising how many times both ovens will be going at once.

Example: during the holidays, or when you are having company, you might have a turkey in one (which usually takes up the space of the entire oven) and then where are you going to put those baked potatoes, hot rolls and apple pie?

I also find when baking a big dinner it sometimes is necessary to have one oven on low heat (for the meat) and the other oven hot for baking bread, etc.

At least it is worth a woman's time to look around and compare prices and see if she can get two apartment-size stoves for the price of one large one. I did.

Drue Lytle

DEAR HELOISE:

When grating a soft cheese... first, lightly butter the hand grater. The cheese won't gum up on the grater or stick to it.

Mrs. James Clauson

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's what to do when shredded coconut gets hard: Cut an apple in half and lay one half of the apple on top of the small jar of coconut, with the peel next to the coconut. Leave this a few days and the coconut will be usable again.

Mrs. J. S. Forester

DEAR HELOISE:

When cutting blossoms from thorny bushes such as roses and bougainvillea, did you know that you can use a spring-type clothespin to hold the stem you want to cut?

Snip off the stem, squeeze the clothespin and drop in the flower basket.

A Reader

DEAR HELOISE:

May I offer a cooking hint? Try saving the excess fat on pork chops and freezing it! The rendered fat is something very special to brown meat in, especially meat balls. This is a must for good spaghetti sauce.

Mrs. Thomas Duffy

DEAR HELOISE:

I would like to pass a few tips along about canned biscuits.

I have found that if I place them in the pan and put them in a warm place to rise for a few minutes before baking, they turn out much better.

Also, if you roll an uncooked biscuit very thin, it is then ready to be used as an individual pizza, the crust for a fried pie or (when baked on a griddle) a flour tortilla.

These have really become work-and-time-savers for me, since my husband is very fond of Mexican food.

Nancy Harris

DEAR HELOISE:

Being a devoted mother of one-year-old twins... may I tell you that they have their first wagon!

I tried to get them to kneel in it when riding, but it hurt their knees.

My husband and I took a bathroom mat and put it in the bottom of the wagon. This seems to absorb all the bumps, besides keeping their corduroy pants from wearing out. The kids love it.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

Diana Hensley

DEAR HELOISE:

For your readers who might have trouble zipping up the back of a dress... put a safety pin on one end of a narrow ribbon and fasten the pin to the tongue of the zipper. Hold ribbon and pull up.

Jessie Weike

STORE A BOARD

I keep my breadboard in a pillowcase alongside my refrigerator. Thus... it is always clean and handy when I need it.

Mrs. Homer Nelson

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever torn your ironing board cover in the midst of a big ironing?

I patch mine with color-fast iron-on tape patches. It gets me through that big ironing job. This even works on silicone covers.

M. M. Frey

DEAR HELOISE:

When using my flour sifter I always put a little foil pan (from those frozen potpies) under the sifter, so that when I set it down the flour left in the sifter doesn't fall on the table. Saves an extra cleanup job.

M. M. L.

CLEARANCE SALE
A real way to have fun and get rid of accumulated "junk" in closets and basements is to have a backyard rummage sale and coffee hour among the neighbors!

Marian O. Hamilton

DEAR GALS:

This woman is really a brain!

What you consider junk might be exactly what your neighbor is in need of. So... when you clean out your closets, garage and kitchen cupboards, pile it all in the garage or porch, then invite all the gals over for coffee. Be real tricky about it though...

Ask all the gals when they are going to have their sales, because they might have something you need.
